"God hath made man upright; but they have sought out many inventions."
Always after something new.

In the good old red-flannel days the Nationals did their "Spring training" right here at home, and the baseball season began in March, so no wonder the players wore whiskers—but what we were about to say was that in '87 the home team celebrated the grand opening by walloping the Portlands, 31 to 0, so 19 to 9 isn't so bad, if we did lose. There were Giants in those days, too.

"Electric telegraphs, printing, gas, tobacco, balloons and steam are little events that have come to pass."

Since the days of the old regime, we went from "bikes" to automobiles.

Then rode on the cable cars, threw away iron and learned to use steel.

Studied the canals on Mars; Edison gave the poor gas jet a blow.

The dead came to life on the screen; Bell came along, and Marconi, too, and now when you talk you are seen.

"Hello! I'm at the office, Dear—Must finish up in haste; What's that? No, there is no one here."

"My arm's around her waist?" Oh! darn old Edison and Bell—I wish both of them were in—She's hung up! Gosh, I've pulled a bone.

She saw me on the telephone.

Mr. Henry L. Stimson is going carmithomponing in Nicaragua.

The President never lets any one person get inflated with the idea that he is the Col. House of the Coolidge administration.

The Capitol Hill tailor who swapped his life's savings for a box of gold is in a position to appreciate how the Democratic party of Wilson, Cleveland, Jackson and Jefferson must feel for thinking that a sumptuary law was a winning issue.

There have been sixty-nine Congresses, but only one Senate of the United States; the one that began at the beginning and is still going. Vice President Dawes renders a decision in the Reed slush-fund committee case that might have put the bust in filibuster if he had thought of it in time.

We unhesitatingly give all the credit for television to Senator Tom Heflin—he's always been a picture when he talks.

Girls with telephones in the boudoir should keep on the himana.

Chile passes into the hands of a Mussolini, and a dictatorship succeeds another republican government. The world wasn't quite used to the third-term idea when Grant wanted one.

"Sing a song of six pence, A pocket full of rye."

Here's a terrible situation in the wet-drinking, dry-voting South—the flood of rye pouring in from Maryland is ruining the Virginia moonshine industry.

We little thought, when the old Walker commission was hanging fire like a two-dollar pistol, that some day we should build both the Panama and Nicaraguan canals. What a lot of wrangling might have been spared if we could have foreseen this.

Now that the question of the Senate being a continuing body has been settled, it remains only to be seen whether Senator Keyes is a continuing tightwad.

The television is probably what the old-time photographer meant by a "speaking likeness."

The people of the District of Columbia can console themselves with the reflection that self-government is more expensive than despotism.

Five hours after he murdered his wife a Wisconsin man is on his way to jail for life, and thus does an enlightened and progressive State do more to solve the crime-wave problem than all the theorists that could be packed into Convention hall.

The suggestion of a special prayer for shorter women's skirts brings the problem right down to a question of knees.

We'll listen in tonight, you bet, For Bill is dry and Nick is wet; For they present upon the stage The greatest question of the age. Demosthenes! Pitt! Webster! Clay! Prepare your laurel wreaths to lay Upon the brow of him today Who best the Universe can sway!

WARNING BY SOVIET FOLLOWS THREATS TO RAID CONSULATE

Shanghai Police Surround Building; Bar Exit and Entrance.

21 FOREIGN WARSHIPS GATHER AT HANKOW

Chinese Exceeded Authorization of Envoys in Embassy Raid, It Is Asserted.

Shanghai, China, April 7 (By A. P.).—Police, assisted by white Russian volunteers, late today surrounded the Soviet consulate in the international settlement, with orders to prevent any one from entering or leaving the premises.

No reason for this action was given, but it was stated that there was no present intention to raid the consulate.

Among the visitors whom the police held up was the Chinese commissioner of foreign affairs, who was informed that he would not be allowed to enter unless he consented to be searched. The commissioner refused to permit this and left.

The possibility of the removal of the Soviet embassy at Peking to Hankow, the seat of the Cantonese, or nationalistic government, was suggested today by Wilhelm F. Linde, Soviet consul here, as a result of yesterday's raid by northern soldiers on buildings attached to the Russian embassy.

May More Soviet Embassy.

Mr. Linde said that such a removal was not impossible in discussing the incident with newspaper men after he had called on the Norwegian consul general, dean of the diplomatic corps in Shanghai, to announce that he would hold the consular body responsible if the Soviet consulate here were raided. Rumors have been in circulation that such a raid was contemplated. The Soviet consul general also declared that if the Peking raid were carried out with the approval of the diplomatic corps, it would set a precedent that would endanger the foundation of diplomatic prerogatives. In this connection he said that he understood that permission for the entry of the Chinese troops and police into the grounds at Peking had been granted solely by the dean of the diplomatic corps and not from all the members.

While interest continued to center here on the international possibilities of the Peking raid, in so far as it may cause serious repercussions in Moscow, foreigners in various sections of China are steadily evacuating the areas where anti-foreign agitation has been spreading.

Hankow, scene of a growing tension, was the center of riotous anti-foreign outbreaks over last week-end, resulting in further plans for a rapid departure of the comparatively few remaining foreigners. "Situation growing worse steadily," was a wireless message received from there today.

Lawlessness Increasing.

With lawlessness in the city apparently increasing, the commander of the United States Yangtze river patrol is urging Americans still in the city to leave as soon as possible. Japanese are leaving the city in increasing numbers, while Germans and Russian nationals are preparing to leave soon.

SENTENCED 5 HOURS AFTER KILLING WIFE

Slayer Begins Life Term in Afternoon for Crime Committed at 7 A. M.

Milwaukee, Wis., April 7.—Scarcely had the body of Mrs. Radich, 26, become cold today when her husband, Vaso, 28, was on his way to Waupun to serve a life sentence for her murder. The speedy justice for which Wisconsin courts have become famous, was highly amplified in this case. At 7 a. m. Radich met his estranged wife on the street, hacked at her throat with a dagger until he severed the jugular vein.

At 8 a. m. he was arrested a short distance from the scene of his crime.

At 9 a. m. he had confessed to the police, and at 9:30 a. m. he was formally charged with murder.

At 10 a. m. he was arraigned in district court and bound over to municipal court.

At 11:30 his confession to the district attorney was read in municipal court, and at noon Judge George Shaughnessy sentenced him to life to Waupun prison.

Radich told the court he feared his wife would tell to divorce him. "I just wanted to scare her," he said.

At 3:25 p. m. Radich was getting his prison haircut at Waupun. He still had bloodstains on his hands as he was being registered at the prison.

New York Gets Likeness And Voice by Telephone When Hoover Talks Here

Movements of Secretary Synchronized Perfectly in Conversation With Business Executive—Genius Is Praised in Television Invention—Audience Hears and Sees Players by Radio.

New York, April 7 (By A. P.).—Television, a scientists' dream ever since the telephone was invented half a century ago, became an actuality today when Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover spoke over the telephone in Washington and was seen as well as heard in the Bell Telephone Laboratories here.

Not only were Secretary Hoover and a score of others in Washington seen in New York by telephone wire, but a radio program was broadcast over the laboratories experimental station, 32XN, at Whippany, N. J., and moving likenesses of the performers as well as the sound of their voices were put on the air and transferred to a screen in this city. Officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. announced that today's demonstration marked the results of years of research and experimentation and that study would be continued with the purpose of improving television to a higher state of efficiency.

They acknowledge that at present the seeming miracle of seeing by wire and wave length was not at a stage where it could be put to such general use as the telephone. The necessary equipment precludes that possibility for some time to come, they said, but the feat of television itself has been accomplished and indications are that "it is likely to have a real place in the world's work of distant communication."

The images of today's speakers in Washington and Whippany were thrown on to both small and large screens. On the screen designed for the telephone's use solely the pictures were exceedingly clear, easily recognizable as likenesses of the person at the other end of communication.

On the large screen, about 1½ by 3 feet, the results were not so clear. Especially was this noticeable when Secretary Hoover's image was transferred from the small screen on which it showed clearly while he talked with President Walter S. Gifford, of the telephone company, to the large screen for the benefit of the half a hundred

"BOX-OF-GOLD" TRICK TAKES SAVINGS OF LIFE

Tailor Loses $1,080 to Confidence Man, Chemist and Miner From West

POLICE SEEK SWINDLERS

"Oh, those dirty fakers." Nathan Lewis, a tailor, 506 Eleventh street southeast, thus upbraided three confidence men yesterday after they had cleverly tricked him of $1,080, his life savings, by selling him a box of "gold." The swindle was a sequel to the old "gold brick game."

One of the men, who said he came from Baltimore, visited Lewis in his shop Wednesday, making inquiries about a shop next door, which he said he intended to rent as a radio supply store. In a lengthy conversation the trickster gained Lewis' confidence.

Shortly after noon yesterday the other swindlers called at the tailor shop, saying they were seeking the "Baltimore" to sell him a box of gold. The two represented themselves as a miner and a chemist from Arizona. The other trickster appeared and the box of shiny gold circles was opened.

The "chemist" produced an alcohol lamp and tested the gold, saying it was worth $4,000. The "miner" agreed to sell for that price to the "man from Baltimore," who requested Lewis to purchase a part of the "gold." The tailor agreed and hurried to a nearby bank, withdrawing his life savings. Upon his return he was handed the box as security while the other three left to obtain the remainder of the $4,000.

After waiting 20 minutes he telephoned his brother in Baltimore, told him he had been tricked. He frantically called the police. Detective Dick Mansfield, of the central office, responded. He opened the box and found the "gold" to be a number of small circles, about the size of a 5-cent piece, which are used as inner stoppers on ketchup and soft drink bottles. Mansfield analyzed and if they were found to contain a part of gold no criminal action could be taken as Lewis had bought them for gold. The detective and the victim went to Bowle race track to search for the three young swindlers.

Lewis said he had known the "Baltimore" for a day and the other two for but 20 minutes. Although he appeared calm at police headquarters, he said, "Every time I think of it I get sick."

Wales, Backed by Fair Bettors, Wins Race

Oxton, Nottinghamshire, England, April 7 (By A. P.).—The Prince of Wales rode his own mare, Lady Doom, to a thrilling victory in the South Today point-to-point steeplechase here today. The 3½-mile race was run over a heavy course.

The prince lost the lead once, but regained it and won handily, cheered wildly by women bettors who had backed Lady Doom.

"Old Hickory's" Hair Is to Be Auctioned

New York, April 7 (By A. P.).—One of the most personal possessions of "Old Hickory" will go under the auctioneer's hammer some time between April 13 and 19, when the flowing blond hair that once was a distinguished feature of Andrew Jackson will be put on sale by the American Art association.

The hair is part of the collection of Jacksons which Andrew Jackson 4th, of Los Angeles, inherited from his forebears. Other articles of the same scheduled sale will be some wine glasses of Jackson's private service, which came from the first cut glass factory in the United States.

The woman, lacking a change of clothes and money but having a properly vided passport, left for London. While aboard the Celtic she was treated as a stowaway. She appeared well educated and had a list of names of friends in London whom she said she had met during the world war when employed by the United States Shipping Board.

She has refused to give any account of herself or relatives, but has received a large sum of money.

BOY ADMITS FIRING DE PINEDO'S PLANE; ACCIDENT, HE SAYS

Sorry He Tossed Match Into the Oil-Covered Water at Dam.

SIGNED STATEMENT GOES TO MUSSOLINI

Sister Machine to the Santa Maria Is Being Shipped to Arizona From Italy.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 7 (By the A. P.).—John Thompson, 17, of Phoenix, a boat tender at Canyon lake, Ariz., late today signed a statement admitting he was responsible for setting fire to Commander Francesco de Pinedo's seaplane, the Santa Maria, at Roosevelt lake yesterday.

The youth said he was the one who threw the lighted match on the oil-covered waters of the lake near the plane, which resulted in the destruction of the ship.

"It was an accident," he said. "I am sorry."

Canyon lake is a few miles below Roosevelt lake and is used for storing irrigation water.

The statement was obtained after a reporter for the Arizona Republican, who was at Roosevelt dam, had questioned Thompson and had him sign the written statement in the presence of Commander de Pinedo, Roland A. Still, manager of Apache lodge, and John W. Hughes.

Didn't Think It Would Burn.

The statement reads: "We went up to the airship on Roosevelt lake on Wednesday morning after it landed. In a rowboat with an outboard motor, belonging to Ed Smith, I was accompanied by Jack Williams, of Phoenix, and Albert Evans, of Phoenix. We helped tow the ship (the Santa Maria) across the lake to Apache lodge. We were all in the boat after it had been refueled, when it was ready to leave. Col. Pinedo was shaking hands with Roland Still, saying goodbye, when I lit a cigarette and threw the match into the water. There was an immediate flash and the flames started from the water to the boat. I knew there was gasoline on the water, but did not think it would burn. I am certainly sorry that it happened."

"We did all that we could do to help save the ship."

The boy who threw the match into the water, bringing to a halt Commander de Pinedo's air tour of four continents, had been sought since yesterday.

Commander de Pinedo said that he would forward the original signed statement to Premier Mussolini which he hopes will allay the fears of his countrymen that the Santa Maria was destroyed as the result of an anti-fascist plot. De Pinedo said "I am sure that it was an accident, a result of the boy's carelessness."

Second Plane Being Shipped.

Milan, Italy, April 7 (By A. P.).—The Italian hydroplane which will be sent to the United States to replace the Santa Maria of Commander Francesco de Pinedo will be shipped aboard the steamship Dullio, which leaves for New York on April 20, it was announced here.

Undersecretary Balbo, of the ministry of aviation, arrived here tonight by airplane from Rome, proceeding immediately to the air base at St. Calende, where a plane was selected. The plane, which was to have been sent to the Pola squadron, is a new S-55, the same type as the Santa Maria. It will be flown to Genoa, where it will be taken aboard the Dullio.

Officer Dead, Soldier Hurt in Plane Crash

Fayetteville, N. C., April 7 (By A. P.).—Lieut. Herbert W. Gamble was fatally injured and Sergt. Edward C. Hillenbrand received a fractured skull and other injuries when their plane fell today while taking off at Pope field, Port Bragg.

Lieut. Gamble died a few hours later. The condition of Sergt. Hillenbrand was reported as fairly comfortable late tonight.

The engine apparently started missing when the plane had reached a height of about 100 feet. The plane was caught in a gust of wind which caused the crash.

Man Listens to Jazz On Radio as He Dies

Guelph, Ont., April 7 (By A. P.).—Jazz music on the radio accompanied Edward Barzman, president of the Guelph Manufacturing Co., to death as he sat in his apartment here, writing a farewell note, inhaling illuminating gas and listening to "a dance of death."

"I gave my laughter with my years," his message read. "This my tears. I received my summons of death tonight, thus this dance of death over the radio. Why prolong the agony? I die because my work is done."

Jacksonville, Fla., and Return, $31.20. Proportionately low round trip fares to all other Florida points and Havana, Cuba; limit fifteen days, liberal stopovers. Tickets on sale for all trains April 9th and 14th. Seaboard Air Line Ry., 714 14th St. Phone Main 637.—Adv.

REED'S COMMITTEE RETAINS ITS POWER, IS DAWES' DECISION

Campaign Funds Inquiry Legal, He Says, After Adjournment.

FESS IS APPOINTED TO GOFF'S POSITION

Effect of Ruling on Fight Over Pennsylvania Primary Still to Be Seen.

Chicago, April 7 (By A. P.).—Vice President Dawes, guided by a Supreme Court decision, today held that the Senate campaign funds investigating committee retains its powers, although Congress had adjourned, and appointed Senator Simeon D. Fess (Republican), Ohio, to succeed Senator Guy D. Goff (Republican), Virginia, resigned, on the committee.

The Vice President followed the opinion of the high court in the recent case against Mal Daugherty, whose testimony was wanted by a Senate committee. The filibuster in the expiring hours of the Senate of the Sixty-ninth Congress and the failure of the resolution of Senator James A. Reed, chairman, Missouri (Democrat), to continue the committee, and the resignation of Senator Goff, left the decision on the question to the Vice President.

Sensors Goff, Borah (Republican), Idaho, and Walsh (Democrat), Montana, all expressed opinions that the committee continued legally to subsist. Senator Keyes (Republican), New Hampshire, chairman of the committee on audit and control of the contingent fund of the Senate, held that the committee was dead, and that he should not approve further expenditures from the fund by the committee.

Return From Panama Trip.

Vice President Dawes returned here yesterday from a vacation trip to Panama, and late today advised Senator Fess of his selection to the Goff vacancy on the committee. At the same time the Vice President made public his action and basis for it in a statement as follows:

"In connection with the matter of the resignation of Senator Goff from the senatorial investigating committee, appointed under Senate resolution 195 of the Sixty-ninth Congress and the appointment by me of a successor to him on the committee, legal arguments pro and con have been submitted to me involving the question as to whether the committee is still in possession of the powers which it had before the adjournment of Congress.

"In my judgment the Supreme Court of the United States, in the case of John J. McGrain, deputy sergeant-at-arms of the United States Senate, appointed by me, has decided in favor of the committee's power to continue its work."

Grocer and Wife Held Up in Store

Phillip Pepper, proprietor of a grocery at 4601 Hunt place northeast, and his wife, Bessie, last night were held up with a pistol pointed by a young negro who robbed the cash register of $18. Before leaving the robber fired one shot in the general direction of Pepper and his wife and warned them not to follow.

Police of the Eleventh precinct arrested several negroes for questioning in connection with the holdup. There were no customers in the store at the time, about 8:30 o'clock.

$3,050 of Ransom For Girl Recovered

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 7 (By A. P.).—Announcement was made by officers tonight that Lewis Willis, 17, and Arthur Willis, 14, negroes, had confessed to the kidnapping of Virginia Jo Frazier, 2-year-old daughter of City Commissioner and Mrs. Fred B. Frazier. The negroes handed over $3,050 of the $3,333 ransom money paid by Commissioner Frazier for the return of the child several days ago.

Retired Officer Missing; Hunted For at Great Falls

Capt. Frederick Kopper Absent From Chevy Chase Home Since Tuesday—His Auto Is Found Abandoned on Conduit Road.

A searching party late last night set out for Great Falls, Va., to hunt for Capt. Frederick Kopper, Jr., U. S. A., retired, who has been missing from his home at 4 West Irving street, Chevy Chase, Md., since Tuesday.

Capt. Kopper's automobile was found abandoned on Conduit road, near Great Falls, yesterday.

Capt. Kopper left his machine shop at 1008 C street northwest, Tuesday afternoon, after telling his foreman that he was going home to dinner.

He never reached his home.

His wife is in a private sanitarium at Mammoth, N. Y., and Capt. Kopper's sister and brother-in-law, Mr.

IN PRISON, HE MERRILY ACQUIESCES IN DIVORCE

Wife Darned His Socks Verbally and Otherwise, Writes Back Convict.

WAS CAVEMAN, HE ADDS

Special to The Washington Post.

Baltimore, Md., April 7.—Frank Lample is serving a term in the Maryland penitentiary for an automobile theft. Last month Mrs. Helen P. Lample filed suit for absolute divorce. Today Lample filed his answer in the nature of a personal letter, written from the penitentiary, to Charles R. Whitford, clerk of the circuit court. Mrs. Lample charges desertion.

Lample's reply was:

"Sir—The bill of complaint and subpoena on behalf of my wife on hand, allow me to say the charge is true and I have no wish to oppose the wishes of Mrs. Lample. My wife was exceptionally kind, patient and affectionate. She cooked a wicked meal, did tricks with the washboard and darned my socks—verbally and otherwise. Further, my wife was sensible and sane, except when she married me. She was a perfect 36, with a powerful punch in either hand, and as frisky as a two-year-old at the barrier."

"I was a caveman, spoke out of turn, and failed to appreciate the loving qualities anybody but a donkey would appreciate."

"I do affirm (how's that for nifty English) that the State relieved my loving wife of a great burden when it assumed the responsibility for my welfare, and will be finishing a good job when it disassembles what I fearlessly term my matrimonial flivver. If you can trump up the above statement, wire me the evidence at your expense. If you can't, give the little girl a hand. Very truly yours,

"FRANK LAMPLE."

Prayer to Lengthen Skirts Is Proposed

Manchester, England, April 7 (By A. P.).—A special prayer meeting to bring about a lengthening of women's skirts has been suggested in a letter received by the Rev. W. Russell Malby, president of the Wesleyan Methodist conference. The Rev. Mr. Malby made this known at the annual meeting today of the Wesleyan Methodist Missionary society.

"But," he added, "I have no intention of complying with the request, because I am sure women know their own minds best."

British Colonel Shot; Lieutenant Accused

Gibraltar, April 7 (By A. P.).—Lieut. A. C. Duffield was arrested today charged with the shooting of Col. James Stephen Fitzgerald, commander of the Second battalion of the East Surrey regiment, who died from his wounds.

An inquest brought out that Lieut. Duffield had requested an interview with Col. Fitzgerald. Witnesses testified they knew of no ill feeling between the two officers.

The affair has caused a sensation. Whether the shooting was accidental or otherwise was not determined.

NEW CANAL TREATY LOOMS IN STIMSON NICARAGUA MISSION

President Also Is Said to Plan a Protectorate Like Panama's.

ENVOY TO CONVEY VIEWS OF COOLIDGE

Senate Would Get Convention. Borah Kept Acquainted With All Steps.

By ALBERT W. FOX.

President Coolidge and Secretary of State Kellogg are preparing to negotiate with Nicaragua a new treaty or convention for the construction of a ship canal and the announced appointment of former Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson as the President's personal representative, looms up as a definite step toward consummation of the project.

It is expected that Stimson will leave New York tomorrow, taking passage on a vessel of the United Fruit Co. He will be accompanied by his wife and by a secretary. The appointment was announced after a conference at the White House between President Coolidge, Secretary Kellogg, Assistant Secretary of State Olds and Stimson.

The text of the announcement was as follows:

"The Hon. Henry L. Stimson, of New York, former Secretary of War, has been selected to make a trip to Nicaragua as a representative of the President, at the suggestion of the Secretary of State in order to take to our Minister, Mr. Eberhardt, and Admiral Latimer, certain views of the administration which can not conveniently be taken up by correspondence and in order to get information from them as to the entire situation in that country to bring back for the use of this government, which they can not very well give to us through correspondence."

300 ATTEND PARTY GIVEN FOR VISITORS TO BANKER SESSION

Association Delegates Entertained by Local Financial Men at Banquet.

THORPE, EDITOR, GIVES SPEECH ON PROSPERITY

Ensemble Singing, Led by
M. D. Schaefer, Is One
Feature of Evening.

By F. W. PATTERSON.

Featuring the first of a two-day session of the Eastern regional conference, savings bank division, American Bankers association, which began in Washington yesterday, was the reception and banquet given last night by local bankers in honor of visiting representatives of financial institutions from cities of the Eastern division, in the Hotel Willard.

With more than 300 visiting bankers and their wives, joining with the numerous Washington bank men and women in the spirit of the occasion, it was early evident that the night would be a gala one. Except for a message of greeting from W. R. Morehouse, president of the savings bank division, American Bankers association, and Fred N. Shepherd, executive manager, American Bankers association, who extended greetings from the national association there were no speeches other than the one of the guest speaker, W. W. Spaid, first vice president, District Bankers association, was toastmaster, and lived up to his reputation for carrying things through with dispatch as well as with verve and humor.

Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, guest speaker, had as his subject, "Prospects for Continued Commercial and Industrial Prosperity and Its Effect Upon Savings," and while his address painted an interesting picture of future prosperity, his remarks were interspersed with the witticisms for which he is famous, and holding the interest of his audience through to the close of what many listeners declared was an all too short address.

Evans in Charge of Arrangements.
The general arrangement of the banquet was in the hands of Joshua Evans, Jr., executive vice president, District National Bank, while E. J. McGuire, vice president of Liberty National Bank was chairman of the committee on entertainment. Music during the dinner was furnished by a Meyer Goldman orchestra. Other entertainment consisted of a soprano solo by Miss Helen Howson, a tenor solo by J. P. M. Bowie, a bass solo by Fred East, a duet by Mr. Bowie and Mr. East, George Wilson accompanying all; the Radio Twine.

King and Erma Calvert, in specialties, and songs by George H. O'Connor, accompanied by Matt E. Horns. Ensemble singing, one of the features of the evening, was led by Michael D. Schaefer.
In addition to the banks heretofore mentioned, the following were included in the list of guests of honor: D. R. Crisinger, governor Federal Reserve Board; Joseph W. McIntosh, controller, Federal Reserve Bank, New York; Douglas, president of the board of commissioners of the District; Sidney Walker, District commissioner; Alvin W. Hall, director bureau of engraving and printing; J. W. Pole, chief national bank examiner; Edgar E. Mountjoy, deputy manager, national bank division, American Bankers association; Dr. Jason Noble Pierce, H. H. McKee, president National Capital Bank; Heinz E. Luedke, editor German Savings Bank Association Journal, Germany, and I. A. Fleming.

Many Visitors Attend.
Local and visiting bankers present were: Francis O. Addison, Jr., W. E. Spaid, New York; Miss Helen M. Auerbach, Somerville, Mass.; James H. Beach, Rome, N. Y.; William L. Beale, and Mrs. Charles J. Beale, New York; Wilkinsburg, Pa.; F. S. Boutwell, Andover, Mass.; Harmon S. Boyd, Thomas W. Bradley, W. R. Brewer, Kenneth F. Brooks, J. J. Byrne, E. T. Burdette, Harold W. Burnside, F. G. Key to Bigger Business.
Pointing out that the "efficient service" may be overworked, but that for which it stands is very much undervalued, Mr. Morehouse, at the morning session, gave the opening address on the program of the Eastern regional conference, saying bank division, American Bankers association, at the Willard hotel.
"Efficient service is the key which opens the way to a bigger business for every bank," said President Morehouse, who also is vice president of the Security Trust & Savings Bank, Los Angeles. "Efficient service is something which can not be laid aside on the shelf only to be used on special occasions," he continued. "If it is to remain at its best it must be used constantly."
Declaring that bank officials should meet their customers half way, Mr. Morehouse urged upon bankers to show them a sympathetic, helpful interest in their business transactions, realizing that while their transactions may be simple, most bank patrons are sincere and earnest.
"The oldest bank in a town," with a history running back 100 years has not a ghost of a chance of getting new business in competition with the bank of efficient service unless it renders an efficient service also," said the presiding officer.

The morning session was opened with welcome to delegates and guests by Harry V. Haynes, chairman of the Washington Clearing House association, host to the visiting bankers, followed by greetings from Howard Moran, president, District Bankers association and chairman of the general conference committee, after which he introduced Mr. Morehouse, who presided over yesterday's session and will do so again today.

The morning session was taken up with addresses on selected subjects with each paper being followed by a 15-minute discussion. A luncheon was served at 12:15 p. m. and the afternoon session was opened at 2 o'clock, continuing until 4:30 p. m.
Edward L. Greene, managing director of the National Better Business Bureau, discussed the "Better Business Bureau in Its Relation to Savings," with the discussion led by Joshua Evans, Jr., executive vice president, District National Bank. H. Brooks Herring, of the Baltimore Trust Co., talked on "Getting Your Money's Worth From Savings Advertising," with Victor B. Dwyer, president, Second National Bank, beginning the discussion; Harry P. Gifford, president, National Association of Mutual Savings Banks, of Salem, Mass., addressed the conference on "Investment of Savings Deposits," with George L. Woodward, vice president, savings bank division, and Dorewell, New Life Customer Problem, (Conn.), Savings Bank, taking charge of the discussion.

Instructional Talks Given.
W. E. Spaid, deputy manager, savings bank division, of the parent organization, started the afternoon session with a talk on "Money and Shadow" in Savings; "Money the Keeping It of Standard Purchasing Power Particularly Essential to Savings Banks," was the subject discussed by Samuel H. Beach, president, Rome, N. Y., Savings Bank, with W. E. Spaid, leading the questioning; H. H. McKee, president National Capital Bank, Washington, told the visitors about "Savings Deposits and Real Estate Loans of National Banks Authorized by the McFadden Banking Bill," the discussion being in charge of Francis G. Addison, Jr., vice president Security Savings & Commercial Bank, Washington; "Publicity and the Misfit Customer Problem," was the title of an interesting paper by Gurden Edwards, publicity director, American Bankers association, with President Morehouse, leading the discussion. The closing address of the afternoon session was made by Albert C. Dalton, president U. S. Shipping Board, Merchant Fleet Corporation, who spoke on "The American Merchant Marine."

Today's sessions will begin at 9:30 a. m. with an address by W. R. Morehouse on "Various Kinds of Depositors and How to Handle Them," followed by four addresses and discussions, while the afternoon session will start at 2 o'clock concluding at 5 p. m.

Entertainment for Women.
Outstanding in the entertainment provided for the group of women attending the conference was the tour of the city followed by a luncheon at the Chevy Chase club. Arrangements for the luncheon were in the hands of a local women's committee headed by Mrs. Howard Moran and Mrs. Harry V. Haynes, respectively chairman and vice chairman. Arrangements for the tour were under the direction of the automobile committee of which Oscar Coolican, investment bankers, was chairman.

Among visitors who attended the luncheon were Mrs. Paul W. Albright, New York; Miss Helen M. Auerbach, Somerville, Mass.; Mrs. Samuel H. Beach, Rome, N. Y.; Mrs. George Capron, Providence, R. I.; Mrs. Margaret Cassidy, Lowell, Mass.; Mrs. Leroy M. Craig, Marlborough, Mass.; John P. Dalton, Newton, N. Y.; Miss Margaret Doerschuk, New York; Mrs. Walter B. Downs, New Haven, Conn.; Mrs. Willard W. Miller, Bloomfield, N. J.; Mrs. R. L. Middlemas, Leominster, Mass.; Mrs. W. R. Morehouse, Los Angeles; Mrs. James B. Morris, New York; Mrs. Harriet Ogden, N. E. Sawyer, Holyoke, Mass.; Mrs. James K. Stewart, Baltimore; Mrs. John H. Ward, Jersey City, N. J.; Mrs. Sterling Whitbeck, Northampton, Mass.; and Mrs. James Willis, Roslyn, Va.

Hinged Pill Boxes Safeguard Users.
To prevent serious or fatal mistakes through switched pillbox covers, the bureau of medicine and surgery, Navy department, has issued pill boxes with hinges for experimental use at the Navy building dispensary, and if the experiment is found successful similar boxes will be obtained for general issue. Some officers think the tendency of the hinges to break may lessen the value of the practice.

NICARAGUA CANAL NEGOTIATIONS.

Although the former Secretary of War, Henry L. Stimson, goes to Nicaragua ostensibly as the President's representative to deal with the situation arising from the revolutionary disturbances, it will be generally assumed that Mr. Stimson's real errand is the negotiation of a treaty providing for the construction of the Nicaragua canal. There is nothing in the conflict between the Diaz government and the Sacasa-Mexican revolt that requires the presence of Mr. Stimson at Managua. The "revolution" directed from Mexico has virtually collapsed, following repeated defeats and the inability of the Calles government to advance further funds to Sacasa or to get supplies to him through the barrier set up by Admiral Latimer.

The treaty with Nicaragua for the construction of the canal will probably follow the general lines of the Hay-Bunau Varilla treaty between the United States and Panama. This treaty provides for the transfer of the canal zone in perpetuity, grants the use of waters, harbors and islands, regulates the fiscal relations of the two governments, &c. The first article provides that the United States shall guarantee and maintain the independence of the Republic of Panama. The experience of the late war has warned the two governments that an additional compact should be made, providing that Panama shall become a belligerent on the side of the United States whenever this country shall be at war. The reason for this additional agreement, which is now pending, is that if Panama should remain neutral an enemy of the United States could enter the ports of Panama and obtain fuel and supplies, and might use the territory of Panama as a base from which to operate against the canal.

President Coolidge doubtless is convinced that if the Nicaragua canal is to be ready for world commerce before the Panama canal is taxed beyond its capacity no further time should be lost. Every one remembers the years of controversy and negotiation that preceded the beginning of construction at Panama; and ten years elapsed from the day the United States actually took possession until the first ship passed through the canal. Presumably the Nicaragua canal could be constructed in less than ten years, because part of the route lies through Lake Nicaragua, and the route is not as mountainous as the Panama route. Nevertheless, if the Nicaragua canal should be opened to traffic ten years hence the enterprise will have been remarkably free from time-consuming obstacles.

The opposition to President Coolidge's policy in Nicaragua is opposition to the new Nicaragua canal. Presumably this opposition will disappear as soon as the Sacasa revolution collapses and the plans of the administration for the building of the new canal become known. Certainly no considerable part of the American people will place obstacles in the way of the President in seeking to provide for the further security of this nation and for the promotion of its commerce. It will be perceived that the guarantee of the independence of Nicaragua, made necessary for the stability of the canal, will forever put an end to revolution and will enhance the welfare of the people of that and neighboring republics.

The Nicaragua canal, when completed, will be a potent agency of national defense as well as an aid to world commerce. The distance from New York to San Francisco via the Nicaragua canal route is several hundred miles less than through the Panama canal. A second canal would minimize the danger of stoppage of transit by reason of earthquakes or slides, as both canals would not be likely to be put out of commission at the same time.

INCREASE OF HUNTERS.

The Department of Agriculture reports that during the 1925-26 season more than 5,150,000 hunting licenses were taken out by sportsmen throughout the United States and Alaska, as compared with 4,300,000 during 1923-24 and 4,900,000 during 1924-25. Obviously hunting is becoming increasingly popular.

It is impossible, of course, to make an accurate estimate as to the amount of game bagged by these millions of nimrods. Undoubtedly, however, it is enormous. To the millions of licensed hunters must be added the even greater army of those who defy the consequences of the law, and unregistered and uncontrolled pay no attention to the legal bag limits. A century ago there was no cause for alarm over the use of the rifle against wild life. Animals were to be found in abundance. It was a genuine public service to get them out of the way so that they no longer could constitute a menace to human habitation. In addition, their slaughter provided a considerable part of the country's food supply.

Since then, however, matters have been reversed. Animal life no longer menaces civilization, nor does it contribute any appreciable part of the meat supply. Gradually, over the years, it has been hunted down until there exists genuine danger that it will become extinct. The Federal government has found it necessary to enact game protective laws. The States have found it advisable to require all hunters to first secure a license. Regulation is the only hope of salvation for American animal life, and it is a pity that more and more individuals are turning toward hunting for pastime and recreation.

BEFRIENDING THE FILIPINOS.

President Coolidge's veto of the proposed plebiscite in the Philippines on the question of independence is an act of friendship toward the Filipinos. "Nothing could be more unfriendly or ungenerous than to promote the cause of Philippine independence at this time. Setting aside the economy phases of the President's message, and looking upon the state of the islands if the people were cast adrift, it is evident that the United States would be guilty of a breach of faith if it should abandon the Filipinos. They are utterly unfitted for the task of maintaining a stable and capable government. It would be a miracle if they were anything else."

Nevertheless, the progress made by the Filipinos is most encouraging. They are moving in the right direction. Their progress seems slow to them, but a comparison of their condition in 1898 with what it is today should give them confidence as well as patience. If anything in the future is a certainty, it is that the United States will help the Filipinos toward independence, and grant it to them whenever they are capable of maintaining it. Their chief impediment is their own politicians, as beggary a lot of rascals as ever cursed a country. These rogues lay upon the feelings of their fellows and stir up the premature and foolish demand for immediate independence. What the politicians desire is the opportunity to exploit their own people, by misuse of government machinery. The pitiful state of the Mexican people under government exploiters is an example of what would occur in the Philippines if the United States were to withdraw.

Fortunately for the Filipinos, the United States will discharge its duty toward them, in spite of the clamor in the islands and the criticism of those Americans who are always eager to impeach the good faith and honor of their own government.

LONG-DISTANCE VISION.

Demonstration has been made by officials of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. of a practical system of television—a method of transmitting synchronously a voice and a picture of the person speaking. The device was developed in the Bell telephone laboratories, and while still short of perfection is sufficiently well developed to have made possible an impressive demonstration, during which Washingtonians spoke into an ordinary telephone transmitter placed before the television device, and their voices were reproduced in New York, accompanied by their likenesses.

The new process presages a new era in communication. Its adaptation to radio has been experimentally demonstrated and sooner or later the world will have what has been anticipated for so long—actual wireless moving pictures. World series baseball games may be flashed on screens throughout the country, faithfully transcribed play by play, accompanied by all the sights and sounds of a championship event. Opera and dramatic events may be carried into the home. A hundred million people may witness the inauguration ceremonies of 1929, hearing every word spoken, seeing with their own eyes every event which transpires. News reels need no longer record past events, for the cameraman may place a box at the scene of action, and audiences everywhere will be able to see and hear history in the making.

Fifty-one years ago Alexander Graham Bell gave the telephone to the world. It seems hardly possible that in so short a time his crude instruments could have been developed into the television device. One can only wonder what the next half century may bring forth.

MAYOR THOMPSON.

The election of William Hale Thompson to be mayor of Chicago was a foregone conclusion after the Hale and Deneen forces effected a combination. The city is Republican by a large majority and Thompson's unique campaign methods and his wide-open program made him very popular, notwithstanding the widespread criticisms of his former administration of the city's affairs. Now Thompson makes this announcement:

"I'm going to drive out all the gangsters to New York, to Cleveland, to St. Louis and elsewhere. In 90 days the crooks will be practically driven out of Chicago. The police will be put back on police duties, instead of sniffing around for home-brew and fanning mattresses for pints."

Thompson has undertaken a man-sized job in trying to rid Chicago of its gangsters. The rivalry of gangs engaged in the liquor traffic has developed strongly entrenched combinations that are difficult to dislodge. They are well equipped with money and evidently there is no lack of criminals ready to do the bidding of the gang leaders. It is not altogether the lack of police effort that has made Chicago the world crime capital. But the whole country will applaud Mayor Thompson in his forthcoming campaign.

The control of the city of Chicago by the Deneen-Thompson combine renders it improbable that Gov. Lowden can obtain the support of the Illinois delegation in the next national convention. With his own State opposing him, his candidacy will be under a heavy handicap, even granting that the corn belt States unite in his support.

PITCHING HAY.

Teaching American farmers how to make hay might be looked upon as equivalent to "teaching your grandmother to suck eggs," were it not for the fact that the Department of Agriculture has completed investigations which clearly indicate that the haymakers still have something to learn.

The department finds that "some of the types and sizes of mowers used by hay growers in certain sections are better adapted to conditions in other sections than those now in use there." In support of this the bulletin gives many interesting illustrations. For instance, it was found that in Idaho a crew of fourteen men will stack from 80 to 90 tons of alfalfa daily with a certain type of outfit, and in Colorado a seven-man crew with a similar outfit puts up only 30 tons. In the same State a crew of eight men, using a sliding stacker and a homemade sweep, stacked 65 tons of wild hay in a day, while in Nebraska one crew of four men with one type of outfit put up 32 tons and in the same State six men are reported as doing twice as much as the four by the employment of devices better adapted to the work.

The bulletin directs special attention to the method of handling hay whereby four to five tons can be taken from a stack, put on a wagon and pitched off into the feed lot within an hour.

It is such information as that contained in the bulletin now available for the asking "while the supply lasts" that is of real value to the farmer. It is not necessary that he should have a college education or be thoroughly grounded in mathematics to understand and profit by these investigations.

AN OLD PLAN REVIVED.

In the North American Review of October, 1821, James Trecothick Austin, attorney general of Massachusetts, wrote as follows:

"We shall not in future hear of any convict being sentenced a fourth time. Out of the whole number 1,471 that have been sent to the State prison in Charlestown, 132 were for a second time, 17 a third time and 8 a fourth time. A law was passed two years since providing that when any criminal sent to the prison was found to have been there before, the attorney general should proceed against him by information, and he should be sentenced for a further term not exceeding seven years, because of his second conviction; and if a criminal should come there for the third time he should be proceeded against in a similar manner, and should be sentenced to confinement for life. Seven convicts are now there for life under this new law. In this way all those who are incurable will be taken from preying on the public, and, having previously learned some trade in the prison, can be advantageously employed."

Apparently the habitual criminal was as much a problem a hundred-odd years ago as he is today. New York State even now is experimenting with its so-called Baumes laws, designed to penalize the repeated offender on exactly the same plan as was adopted by Massachusetts in 1821. Other States are watching the experiment closely, and there is a decided tendency to copy the Baumes laws elsewhere. This, too, follows the advice of the long dead attorney general of Massachusetts, who, commenting on the habitual-offender law, added, "It would probably be good policy for the other States to adopt this recent regulation."

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED NEW JOBS.

From the announcement by the civil service commission, in which plans are outlined for filling some 2,500 places in the new prohibition bureau, it appears that special efforts are to be made to prevent the inadvertent selection of gangsters, murderers and other criminals for the jobs. This desirable end is to be attained by requiring each of the applicants for a job to imprint his finger marks upon his application. These fingerprints are to be used to "check the accuracy of the applicant's statement as to arrest, indictment or conviction for crime or misdemeanor."

Examinations will be held in 600 different cities and towns throughout the country, and it is expected that not less than 25,000 persons will apply for the privilege of taking the tests. The positions to be filled include one chief of field division at $6,000 a year, 5 zone supervisors at $5,200, 24 administrators at $4,000 to $6,000, with 24 assistants in enforcement work at $3,300 to $5,200 each, and a like number in "permissive work" at equal salaries; 50 deputies at $3,000 to $4,600, besides field office inspectors, associate inspectors at salaries ranging from $3,000 to $3,900 a year each, senior and junior investigators to the number of 180, who will draw anywhere from $3,900 down to $2,400 each, followed by a small army of agents, junior agents, warehousemen and watchmen. The list winds up with 74 attorneys at $1,860 to $5,200 a year.

The civil service commission says that because of the painstaking care with which the examinations are to be made "the testing of applicants for the 2,500 newly classified positions under the bureau of prohibition is one of the largest single tasks ever undertaken by the commission."

LOCAL TAXES.

The Washington Chamber of Commerce at a recent meeting went on record in no uncertain terms against what was characterized as "tax excesses." Following presentation of the matter of an increase in the gasoline tax, discussion swung around to the proposed 20 per cent boost in the valuation of improved property. Both measures were emphatically denounced, and finally by unanimous action the president was directed to form a committee to consider the whole taxation problem and to recommend early and active measures calling for a concerted protest to both District officials and Congress.

Formation of such a committee is to be most generously commended. It is generally admitted that residents of the District pay an extraordinarily high tax as compared with that paid by other communities throughout the United States. Yet the District must have funds with which to carry on its varied activities, and the streets must be kept in good condition. Adequate funds for either apparently have not been available. Streets are in bad condition despite the fact that the present 2-cent gas tax brought in not much less than $1,000,000 last year, all of which was expended for highways. At least several District departments are handicapped by lack of funds even now, and the general tendency, with an increase in population, will be toward extended activity. Additional funds may be raised by the increased valuation and by the increased gasoline tax. The wisdom of these steps, however, is a matter for serious study.

Last February, Frank W. Mondell, former floor leader of the House, told members of the chamber that the Federal government's share of District expense should be larger, and this is undoubtedly what the committee will discover. If Congress can not be made to see matters in this light, however, other steps will have to be taken to alleviate the distressing condition. The government of Washington can not function efficiently without money.

PRESS COMMENT.

Active Bull.
Indianapolis News: The bull certainly seems to be active in the China shop.

Paradoxically.
Norfolk Ledger-Dispatch: Most of the folks who talk so much about changing their religion haven't any to change.

Guaranteed Liquor.
El Paso Times: Much of the liquor that is being sold in New York these days is guaranteed to last the drinker a life time.

Useful Gift.
Bartlesville Enterprise: A thoughtful bridegroom is one who gets his bride the best can opener that money can buy.

Has Not Enlarged It Any.
Detroit Free Press: It has been ascertained that President Coolidge wears a No. 7 1/2 hat. But this is the same size he wore when he entered the White House.

Perils of Preoccupation.
Aitchison Globe: An Aitchison man started to dig fish worms the other day and absent-mindedly spaded the whole garden plot. His wife had been trying to get him to do it for two weeks.

Can't Be Done.
Minneapolis Journal: The history of the world and its economic results, undertaken by the Carnegie endowment for international peace, will fill 175 volumes. Bet you it won't settle who started it.

Diversification.
Detroit News: It would be easier to worry ourselves sick over the suggestion that the standardizing influences of modern life are making us all alike, if Oscar W. Underwood and Senator J. Thomas Heflin hadn't both come from Alabama.

Unfortunate Experience.
Baltimore Sun: That Pawtucket man whose memory slipped away while he was shopping with his wife is entitled to many a husband's sympathy. It was a sad case. He wandered out of Rhode Island and reached Suffolk, Va., before he came to himself. There he was jolted off an automobile truck, and the experience reminded him that he had been shopping with his wife. And many a husband knows exactly why.

Bad Books.
Boston Globe: The comicality of the whole performance is disclosed by the fact that one of the novels, "The Plastic Age," by Percy Marks, has long been forgotten by most readers. It is at least two years since it was a best seller. Its author has written two new books since it appeared. If it "tended to corrupt the morals of youth" it would seem that ample opportunity was given it to get its horrid work in before the local authorities became alarmed. Censorship of books by public officials is a dangerous business, as well as, generally, a stupid one.

Mellon's Reply.
Philadelphia Record: Secretary Mellon makes two very pertinent points in his reply to the faculties of Columbia and Princeton universities, who think the war debt ought to be remitted, which had not been noted by them and which the general public probably does not realize. In reply to the point that the money we loaned to the Allies was expended in this country, the Secretary says that we spent hundreds of millions of dollars in England and in France in the purchase of material. They ought to reimburse us for this if we ought to pay for their purchases in this country. As to their inability to pay, Mr. Mellon gives the figures showing that the Allies are getting as much from Germany—in some cases more—

Test of Success

By ROBERT QUILLEN

THE most successful man I ever knew died without enough money to pay his funeral expenses. The newspapers mentioned the fact of his death, but omitted adjectives. This man had lived without acquaintance with vice. He had worked hard, paid his debts, taught his family to enjoy living and taught his children to work. His burdens were pleasures. He did not know how to complain. He had the respect of everybody in his community—including a few enemies.

Why do we call men of this type failures? In what particular have they failed? We do not say that a physician has failed because he has written no poetry or that a banker has failed because he can not shoe a horse. We can not measure the degree of a man's success until we learn where his goal lies.

It might almost be said that the popular understanding of success is the getting of money, for there is little respect for a fame that can not be used as a means of acquiring money. Fame is advertising, and advertising may be cashed at the paying teller's window.

The man who acquires great wealth is successful in that particular. If wealth was his goal he deserves credit. But if he had no other goal and accomplished nothing more, he did not make successful use of his brains.

If mere getting is success, why deny honor to the safe-cracker? Is a man a success if he gets money by methods that lose him the respect of his fellows and give him no pleasure in his own society? Is he a success if he gets money and raises daughters to be fools and sons to be loafers?

The king who rules an unhappy and maltreated people is a failure. The carpenter who hangs a door well is a success. There is more honor in using one talent well than in abusing the possession of ten.

To keep clean, to do good work, to earn friends, to be happy and bestow happiness, to develop opportunity, to serve where possible and learn not to whine—this is success. There is no greater. There is no other.

When two live as cheaply as one, there is usually a rich dad-in-law in the background.

Correct this sentence: "I've signed notes with ten friends," said he, "and never yet have been left to hold the bag."

as they are paying to this country, or to this country and Great Britain. In other words, Germany is paying the debts of the Allies.

Chance to Cooperate.
Terre Haute Star: Other States might be willing to help Texas get its prisons filled up again.

Or Forged.
Nashville Banner: As a matter of propriety, it does seem as though it would be better to speak of the votes that were "minted" instead of "cast" in the last Pennsylvania Senatorial primary.

Stealing Their Thunder.
Ohio State Journal: Probably as simple and easy a way as there is to tease the hardened old professional reformers is to refer to modification in a matter-of-fact way as a reform measure.

Misdirected Love.
Aitchison Daily Globe: Many a mother, who would gladly throw herself in front of a train to save the life of her child, does as much damage to the child through misdirected love as the train would have done.

Humanizing Hospitalization.
New York Evening Post: With the aim of applying the rule of "capacity to pay," a group of philanthropists is about to build an extensive hospital at Warwick, N. Y. Such a project has been discussed for years, and its completion will go a long way to "humanize hospitalization," as its projectors remark. When the well-to-do are smitten with a serious illness it is a simple matter to call in specialists to care for them, and it is quite as simple for those who are willing to accept charity or even free beds in paying hospitals. But there are many who are not able to meet the high costs of modern specialists and who prefer to suffer in silence rather than accept something for which they can not pay. To care for these has long been a problem. The establishment of a hospital where the best care can be obtained at a price within the means of such persons is a true form of philanthropy. Treatment there will leave no humiliating memories.

SMALLPOX.
In the Review of Reviews Dr. W. W. Keen, the famous Philadelphia physician, says of smallpox: "When John Hancock called the 56 members of the Continental Congress to order he undoubtedly faced an audience of whom nearly or quite every one was pock-marked. Diligent inquiry elicits the fact that not a single one of the 541 Senators, Representatives and delegates of the present Congress is pock-marked."

"The anti-vaccinationists oppose vaccination as an invasion of their personal liberty and an illegal assault upon their persons."
"Has one man, by neglecting to be vaccinated, the legal right to kill 3,164 persons, to endanger the lives of fifteen or twenty thousand more who contracted smallpox but escaped death? An emphatic 'No' is the only possible answer. Yet one man's neglect to be so vaccinated did cause precisely these results in an epidemic in Montreal, in a population of only 185,000, as recorded by Sir William Osler. A Pullman porter who reached that city on February 28, 1885, ill with smallpox, caused a prolonged epidemic that killed or maimed thousands and halted the commerce of the city for ten months. The color of his skin masked the character of the eruption so that the disease was not at first recognized. The direct and indirect losses and expenses are incalculable."

"During the 42 years since then, wholesale and continued vaccination, as a result of that epidemic, has been carried on; and a late report shows that smallpox has practically disappeared from Montreal."

"Has not the community both the right and the imperative duty to insist upon vaccination, because it prevents such wholesale slaughter?"

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Have Animals Souls?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: To many persons who have a sympathetic interest in animals, and an inherent love for them, this subject is of more than passing interest, and especially now in view of a recent press dispatch from Paris announcing an interesting discussion of the subject by the Forty Immortals of the French academy.

"Be kind to animals week," which is annually observed, would appear to be an opportune time to pause and consider how little is given to them in the way of kindness in return to our faithful friends for all their faith and love and, in many cases, even sacrifices of their lives, as recorded in the many instances of animal heroism of daily occurrence.

If not possessed of an immortal soul, how much more appealing for kind treatment in their too short and abused lives.

ELEANOR W. HITE.

Changing Faces.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If Frank Marion Eddy, who served in Congress from Minnesota from March 4, 1895, to March 3, 1903, is still alive, he will read with keen interest the report from San Quentin, Calif., about the new countenances that are being furnished to prisoners in that place when they are released.

At a little social gathering in Washington during his term in Congress, Mr. Eddy stated that he was without doubt more entitled to the booby prize for masculine pulchritude than any other man who ever served in the House of Representatives. He added that only the rules of the House prevented him from extending his claim to being the homeliest man who ever served in Congress. The rules precluded him from referring personally to members of the Senate.

I was once accused by a political opponent of being "two-faced," said Mr. Eddy, "and I ask any sane man in this assembly if he believes that I would willingly continue to appear on the floor of the House or in any other public place with the face I now wear if I had any other to substitute for it." Every one admitted that there could be only a negative answer to that question.

Now from San Quentin comes the word that Jim Daly, a convict 55 years of age, who is about to be discharged, complained that when he starts out to "go straight" his repulsive countenance would cry out as a bar toward finding a job in any honest calling. The physician at San Quentin, who studied plastic surgery, which has been developed to a remarkable degree as a result of the world war, agreed to change the face of Jim, upon the latter's request. He pared down the cauliflower ears to normal size and used the parings to fill up a gap in the nasal adornment of Mr. Daly, and the results were remarkable. Within the space of ten days that countenance had been replaced by a fair imitation of a comely human face.

The doctor has been requested to perform 22 similar operations, and 22 convicts will leave San Quentin at the end of their terms with faces so changed that it is doubtful if their mothers will be able to recognize them. But if my friend, Congressman Eddy, is still alive, he is over 70 and will likely be content to continue in the knowledge that his has never been found to dispute his claim to prominence as the "homeliest man who ever served in the House of Representatives."

AND OF 10,000 SOUGHT TO RELIEVE NEEDY HERE

Charities Bear Burdens of 1,149 Destitute Families in Capital.

TYPICAL CASES ARE CITED

The heavy burden which the Associated Charities and Citizens Relief Association are carrying this year due to the largely increased number of families in which some sort of disaster has brought dependence was considerably lightened yesterday by the larger number of contributions received at the headquarters in Social Service house, 1022 Eleventh street, in response to the Easter appeal. During the day 134 separate contributions were scored, which brought the current year's total of members up to 3,160 toward the goal of 10,000 members aimed at.

By way of showing some of the kind of family problems which the visitors of the Associated Charities are continually dealing with and solving constructively, a few typical family situations taken from the records of the visitors but with name and location not mentioned are herewith published. Each one could be multiplied many times with similar disasters taken from the total of 1,149 families which the visitors of the society have cared for in the past six months.

No. 1. Expects to "Come Back"—A faithful, hard-working husband and father of two children had to give up work owing to serious illness and go to a hospital. He went with the promise of the Associated Charities visitor that his family would be continued to be cared for. Now he is better and hopes soon to be able to come back home and resume his old job. The wife is too frail to go out to work and meantime she and the two children must be taken care of. A minimum of $18 a week for the next six months will do it. Who wants to help this family?

No. 2. A Boy's Life Saved by Timely Aid—This family was too poor to pay the expenses of a hospital operation necessary to save the life of a little son. The Associated Charities was called on and agreed to be responsible. The father is now convalescing and $21 a week is needed for ten weeks, or $210, for specialized medical service.

No. 3. Husband Sick and Three Children a Womans Burden—This family (colored), faced eviction for overdue rent and an empty cupboard when the visitor of the Associated Charities arrived on the scene. The rent bill was paid and other necessities provided. Now the visitor finds that the man will in time get well and care for his family, but until then she estimates that $220 will be needed to carry them through to self-support.

Contributors who wish to have gifts used for the benefit of any of the particular families mentioned in The Post from day to day during the Easter campaign may do so and they will be acknowledged in The Post by number of family indicated. Any such gift will be counted toward the 10,000 members needed by the Associated Charities.

MINNIE WOLFE HURTS VIRGINIA'S RUN TRADE

Stream Pouring in Gives Old
Dominion Moonshiners
Much Concern.

BUILD STILLS ELSEWHERE

Richmond, Va., April 7 (By A. P.). Rye whisky, manufactured in Maryland, is partially disrupting a prosperous moonshine business in this territory, it is announced. Heretofore the "shine" producers had things pretty much their own way but the stream of rye pouring in has caused the local producers no little trouble, the report says.

Not only is the Maryland liquor pouring into the Richmond area, but Richmond still makers are going to Maryland to manufacture their distilling apparatus for sale. Such a calling does not carry with it a threat of a prison term as it does in Virginia, it was explained.

Little boats can slip across the Potomac and nestle in a cove with slight fear of detection after manufacturing the spirits in a State with laws less harsh than those of the Old Dominion. From then on the question is only that of marketing.

There have been some casualties in these activities, however. A State prohibition agent seized upon a brace of automobiles near the Downing bridge recently, reporting the discovery of enough liquor to distill a boat.

Local whisky retailers are beginning to show interest in the imported product, much to the chagrin of the Virginia moonshiners.

Annopolis 'June Week'

Set May 26 to June 2

Special to The Washington Post.

Annopolis, Md., April 7.—May 26 to June 2 is the period fixed this year for "June Week" commencement festivities at the Naval Academy. It was announced today.

Graduation exercises will be held on the latter date, and it is expected that Secretary of the Navy Willard will deliver the principal address, although an invitation to the academy has been extended to President Coolidge.

The program of festivities is now in course of preparation by officials. The board of visitors will conduct annual inspections of the academy the latter part of this month.

Annopolis, Md., April 7 (By A. P.).—The bane of a midwife's life—coaling ship—will be removed from this summer's annual cruise of the United States Naval Academy. For the first time the midshipmen will embark on oil-burning cruisers. They will sail from Annapolis June 3 and return August 26.

Admits Fifth Woman To Bar in Maryland

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 7.—Mrs. Mary H. C. Zimmerman, formerly of St. Louis, now of Baltimore, was the only woman in a group of 43 young men admitted as attorneys by the Maryland court of appeals here today. She is the fifth of her sex admitted to practice at the bar in Maryland.

The class was presented to the court by Attorney General Thomas H. Robinson, and the oath was administered by Chief Justice Carroll T. Bond. Mrs. Zimmerman, who is a graduate of DePaul university, Chicago, recently passed the State board examinations with the others of the class. She is the wife of G. H. Zimmerman.

Votes Daily Reading Of Bible in Schools

Charleston, W. Va., April 7 (By A. P.). A bill making daily reading of the Bible compulsory in the State's public schools was passed by the West Virginia house of delegates today after a lively debate.

The vote was 49 to 47. The measure specifies the readings from the New Testament and part of the Old Testament. It permits students to be excused from readings on written request of parents and penalizes by dismissal teachers who "habitually" refuse or fail to give the reading.

Opponents attacked the bill as unconstitutional and a political trick, while its sponsors maintained that what was taught in the schools is reflected in the nation. The bill now goes to the senate.

Prescribing Moderate Exercise

"REASON," says the dictionary, is "the exercise of the logical faculties." It should require a very moderate amount of exercise, then, to accept these reasons for buying coal in Spring: You get the advantage of the lowest price for the entire season, and you have the enormous advantage of having it off your mind in Fall, when the youngsters have to be outfitted for school, and other expenses demand all the attention of one's logical faculties!

"FALSE LOVE AND TRUE"

By CAROLINE BEECHER

SYNOPSIS.

Bab Livingston's maiden aunt, Alice, who had bought her a new dress, died on Bab's eighteenth birthday, the day of her coming out party. Her aunt had lived well on an annuity, but there is only $240 left for Bab. She goes to New York, and in a few days, she is back, having secured a $10 furnished room. After two chance meetings, the lonely girl accepts the invitation of Bob Thornton, artist, about 30 years old, to dine and dance. George Allison, a home-town boy, calls, and suffers by comparison with the lively Bob. Edward Clark, associate of Marvin, tries to make a dinner engagement, but instinctively she dislikes him. Bab goes to the Ritz with Bob and meets Matt Waters, and he makes an engagement with her. On parting, Bob embraces and kisses her and despite herself she thrills to his caresses.

Angered by Marvin's violent love-making, she quits her job. She takes a cheaper room in the same house. Matt calls that evening and she feels she had found a real friend.

Still no job after two weeks' search. Bab confides with Matt, and sorrowfully refuses to marry him, but they are still good friends. She and Bob dine and dance. She learns that he paints portraits of society women and landscapes, and is unhappy, yet happy at his social irresponsibility. When they part she returns his repeated kisses.

Bab reads of Marvin's arrest as a boot-lagger. Meeting Matt at the stock exchange, she has lunch with him, as she is hungry. She tells him of her new job.

Bab has only $10 left when Mrs. Woods, her landlady, tells her to go to the movie house to see Rosebush. The manager, a former roomer with Mrs. Woods, about a year ago, has been in the movie business.

Bob passes it off lightly when she tells him the nature of her new job and the manager. Irene Copeland, Rosebush's stenographer, drinks are served. Bab gives up her job and she learns that Harry Jessup pays Irene's bills. George Wood takes her home a taxi and makes love.

Louely for Bob, she forgets the headache that sent her home early from the movie. She sees his car in front of her rooming house. He tells her he is not leaving her as he holds her in his arms and calls her "Sweetness."

CHAPTER XX.

Did Bob Thornton really love me? He had said he couldn't help loving me. Did he try not to, and was that the reason he didn't see me often? Had my telling him I had been with others having a good time made him a teeny-weeny bit jealous?

Not one of these questions could I answer. My mind was in a whirl. A dervish dance. I hated myself for letting George Brown kiss me, although I had not, not even kissed him. I wouldn't be alone with him again. I couldn't give up seeing him if I kept in with Irene. He was Harry Jessup's shum. And I couldn't give up Irene, the good times she had promised me with her crowd. I was hungry for pleasure. Life.

My finances worried me also. I tried to economize on my food. My reserve all gone, what should I do for new clothes when I came to need them? I managed to get along, and that was all. Restaurant food had grown distasteful. I thought of our good home dinners when auntie was with me. Thought of those hungry, hungry little flat with the kitchenette. Envious. I had met Peg Andrews several times. I liked the blunt, out-spoken girl. Common, yes, but good company. The girl who had shared her room for a long time had left. She proposed I take her place.

"Do you really mean it, Peg?" I asked.

"Sure do, kiddo," she returned. "I don't know if I can afford it. I know nothing of what Peg spent. She told me what she had paid. Adding: get my own breakfast, and lots of times my dinner. I'm a wiz with cooking. And it cost half as much as going to restaurants—even to cheap ones. Then I save the tips beside."

We talked it over and I found I could live more cheaply, and also have companionship. No longer would I have to sit alone eating my heart out if I went with Peg. I told her I would join her. Pay half the expenses. I could hardly wait. While Mrs. Woods was kind, she was very strict. No cooking of any kind was allowed. No washing out of even the smallest thing. Peg said she would do the cooking until I caught on, then I could do my share. At home I had sometimes made salads, fixed the table, etc. But that was the extent of my knowledge. I had always cared for my own room, and told Peg I would be the cleaning woman while she was cook.

Mrs. Woods seemed really sorry to have me go. She said:

"I hope, Miss Livingston, you have a good roommate, the right kind of a girl. You are very young to live in that way."

I explained my reason, dwelling upon the distaste I had for restaurant food. Also I could live more cheaply. She said no more, but when I left babe me good-by kindly.

We had only one room and a large closet, Peg and I. We both slept on couch beds, so the room resembled a sitting room in the daytime. That is, we pretended it did; although I know it fooled no one. We had two electric stoves, and paid extra for the electricity.

Peg had told the truth. She could cook. How good the vegetables and broiled chops tasted that first meal. Peg was to keep the books, as we were to go fifty-fifty on everything. She added the cost of the dinner, and it wasn't as much for both of us as the simplest dinner I could get at a restaurant had cost me.

"And no tips," Peg gloated. Peg told me she often had company. Her young men friends. Would Bob come to see me now that I lived away from a rooming house? I wondered. Someway I couldn't see Bob in that makeshift sitting room. Yet it was better than Mrs. Woods' public parlor, where one never was sure of being alone.

"Where did Nancy (Peg's former roommate) go?" I asked.

"She's got a flat now, like Irene. You mean—"

"Yes, her fellow insisted she have one so he could come when he wanted to. Goodness knows I left them alone as much as I could. She thinks he'll marry her some day. But I'll bet she's left. Then it's the white lights for her. A girl gets soft when she lets a fellow take care of her. I've seen too much of that game. A wedding ring for me—first. They're all the same. Bab. Don't let them fool you."

"They aren't all like that," I said. "Yes, they are! I'm no saint, Bab. I like a good time, and a girl can't be too stand-offish if she wants one. Kisses, petting parties don't really count. And in New York you get left at the post if you don't give the fellows something. Be a devil of a good fellow, but that's all."

"Irene—" I said again.

"She'll get hers some day. Harry is a queer bird. He's got money, and Irene don't have to work if she don't want to. But she's got old-fashioned folks somewhere. She works so they won't know."

I was learning fast. This New York—how different from my little home town, where no one ever heard of such affairs. Well it was New York. I must do as others did if I wanted any pleasure. But as Peg did, I'd do. To never give myself to any man unless I had the ring—first.

Right and Wrong in Black and White

© VOGUE

BLACK and white is smart for spring—Anne and Annabelle both know that. But Annabelle, at the left, believes that you can't have too much of a good thing, while Anne, at the right, knows exactly when to stop.

Observe Annabelle. Her dress is really very nice—in fact, it is the same model as Anne's, in black crepe roman with a long jabot lined in white. But it droops dismally in the back and bulges in all sorts of places. Furthermore, she has painstakingly bought a black and white hat, a double fox fur that consists of one black skin and one white, a black and white bag, earrings and a necklace of white pearls and jet beads. Her shoes and gloves are the worst of all—the shoes are Oxfords with patent leather toes and white kid heels, her gloves are white place kid, with black embroidery and tassels on the cuffs, and her stockings are white!

Anne began with the same dress, but hers is beautifully fitted. Her hat is a plain, smart little black felt, her pearls, her patent leather strapped shoes, and her very beautiful silver fox, are in the best possible taste. Her gloves and stockings are a neutral beige.

"Isn't it queer?" thinks Annabelle. "Anne always looks so well dressed, but she never seems to plan things out as I do."

"Poor dear," thinks Anne, "she works so hard to be smart, and, of course, she always misses by miles. Some one ought to tell her that it is possible to overdo even the smartest color combination, and that a smart woman looks as though she had bought the right clothes and then forgotten about them—not as though she had worked hard for her effect."

WIVES OF TOMORROW

By FRANCES M'DONALD

DEAR FRIEND—You have written such lovely articles that I am hoping you will write me some advice on a subject which has troubled me often. I have been married for five years and have three children. My husband and I get along nicely together. But my trouble is I am at times jealous of him. Especially when at a dance—when he is extra nice to other women. I really do not think he means any harm—but I am too sensitive and it hurts me. He is always considering me but he knows I am jealous when he makes a fuss over other women. If I say anything about it—he only laughs and says you are so jealous you don't want me to have a good time even. Now, I do want him to have a good time; but I get out so little that when he goes I hate to have this jealousy spoil my evening. Do please answer this small note of mine. For all your advice has been very good, and I have been greatly benefited by it. Very gratefully,

A READER.

P. S.—I like to know what to do to overcome this and as I am sure my husband can mean no harm by this—or do you think he does mean to be hateful. He always has been a great tease and joked a lot. Thanks for your advice; which you may give me.

Does he mean to be hateful? Far from it! Indeed he must have a marvelous disposition to continue good-natured and loving when you harbor such perfectly horrid thoughts and suspicions. To begin with, you must realize that it is really stupid for people not to enter into all the enjoyment any evening offers. And any person who sits in a room filled with people thinking solely of some one individual in that room is acting stupidly—to say the least. Besides, such a person is neglecting to take advantage of the much needed social contacts offered by such an opportunity. The jealous individual is invariably the one whose contacts and interests are sadly limited. The mental horizon is limited, the perspective is warped. Eventually all physical attraction ceases through loss of the magnetism that lives only as it is fed by the magnetism of others. You must go out more. You must feel at a dance as if you were not even with your husband. You must be an entity instead of a part of his entity. When you are introduced to people, try to see in them the qualities that make them loved. Your husband is not possibly the only very attractive man at each dance you attend—bear that in mind—and enjoy yourself. By doing this you will avoid the moment when your husband no longer cares to take you out. That is the price most wives pay for the selfishness that they call love.

Be warned!

Conduct and Common Sense

By ANNE SINGLETON

QUESTIONS about good and bad breeding are questions I like to answer. Many people find themselves today, through their money, in positions where, by their upbringing, they do not belong; and, for fear of not striking the right note, they strike the wrong one so loudly that they can hardly hear a word. Yes, I long to advise them. I came on some sentences in a book quite lately which are exactly the sort of thing I often try to tell inquirers, and I think it would be a pity not to quote them. "She saw, cruelly contrasted, the immeasurable difference between good breeding and bad breeding, on one side, simple kindness, absence of pretension, the dignity of complete naturalness; on the other side, vulgar pretense, sham refinement, assumption and obsequiousness." The occasion was one where the mother and sister of a girl acting as secretary to a great lady in London had taken advantage of the girl's position in the house to force their acquaintance upon the lady. She—though surprised—was having as politely as she could, and they were showing off and being over-elegant, boasting of fine friends, pretending that, as a rumor of her illness had reached them, they'd rushed over to inquire about her health, and making the girl (who was a real lady) thoroughly ashamed of them.

Here is a very good example of bad breeding. If the pushing mother and daughter had really been anxious, all they had to do was to ask for the girl and make their inquiries of her. But they were not anxious about anything beyond getting themselves into that social asset to be on visiting terms, of no matter what sort, with the lady. You may be sure they were exhibiting their underlying meanness of soul with every word. To be sincere, self-respecting, considerate and sensitive enough to know when you are taking a liberty, are among the first requisites of good breeding. All of these were lacking in this instance.

No genuine person, with any intelligence, is ever ill bred. Sense and sensitiveness will keep any one in the right way. You must be born in the gutter and bring the finest feelings to the highest cultivation, but not until you had ceased to care where you were born or to wish to conceal it.

Mr. Work's Pointer On Auction Bridge

THE pointer for today is: With Queen-x in Dummy and Ace-Ten-x in Closed Hand, play small from Dummy.

The idea of playing Queen from Queen-x in Dummy on a small card led against No Trump, is so firmly planted in the minds of many that they fail to appreciate that in some cases—and notably in the one covered by the above pointer—it is inadvisable to do so. When the Closed Hand has Ace-Ten-x, the play of the small card from Dummy insures the making of two tricks in the suit; with the Queen played, only one trick may be made. If the Queen be played and it be covered by the King, the Closed Hand probably will take with the Ace, and have left the guarded Ten. That Ten will take a trick if the next lead of that suit be made from the adverse hand on the left; but if it be made from the adverse hand on the right, the Ten will be captured. By the Ten's capture, two tricks must be made regardless of the location of the adverse King and Jack. If both be in the hand of the leader, the Ten will take the first trick and the Ace a subsequent trick. If both be in the Third Hand, the Ace will take the first trick and the Ten the third trick. If the lead be from the King, the Third Hand having the Jack, the Ace will take the first trick and the Ten the third trick; and if the lead be from the Jack, the Third Hand having the King (as in the hand given yesterday), two tricks are assured for Declarer.

Yesterday's illustrative hand was as follows:

North:
S. Q-4
H. 8-6-5-3
D. 10-9-8-7
C. K-9-3

West:
S. J-9-7-5-2
H. 10-4
D. J-7
C. 10-8-7-2

East:
S. K-8-3
H. A-J-7
D. 10-9-5-4
C. Q-J-4

South:
S. A-10-6
H. K-Q-9-3
D. A-8-3
C. A-6-5

With the Five of Spades led, Dummy should play the Four, East the King, and South could win with the Ace, or duck and take the second and third tricks in the suit. The duck would be better because, if the first trick be won, command of the suit must be given up on the second lead. Playing a No-Trump, it is generally wise to keep a winning card of the adverse suit until the partner of the leader has no more of it.

The balance of the play tomorrow. (Copyright.)

BEAUTY AND YOU

By VIOLA PARIS

THE IDEAL OF SLENDERNESS.

THE whole ideal of the feminine physique today is based upon slenderness. Don't think that I am proffering this as any unique and brilliant discovery of my own; it is far too much a recognized truism for that. Neither do I need to point out to you how the ideas and ideals of the world have altered in this regard during the present century. Time was when pinched waists, bustles and balloon sleeves accentuated the characteristics of femininity. Nowadays, the whole purpose of dress seems to be to create an effect of slimmness and to make the figure seem immature.

The Paris dressmakers have been an inestimable help to us in this regard. How cleverly they have manipulated lines and fulness in order to beautify the feminine silhouette! And now they are even employing color to the same end. One famous young couturier—Lucien Lelong—has gone so far as to build his entire spring and summer collection upon this theme. He calls the illusion "kinoptic"—that is, the dress is designed so as to look well in motion and also to bring out the effect of slenderness through its coloring.

It is well known that dark colors make the figure look slimmer than do light ones. However, women are not content to wear black or navy blue the year around. Sometimes this illusion of slenderness can be achieved through the use of several shades of the same color in combination—the "composé" effect. Again, it is realized in pastel shades of blue. This—the heavenly or spiritual color—is thought to give the feeling of lightest weight. Although the present-day mode is marvellously kind to women—tending to make them look divinely slim—it is scarcely fair to rely upon it alone. It is plainly our duty to do our share—to discipline the body and make it conform to the proper size and weight through a judicious program of diet and exercise. Some one recently wrote to ask me the "most comfortable way to reduce." Reducing is not a comfortable process. It is almost wholly dependent upon a strong will—the determination to renounce the easy, comfortable, self-indulgent habits of living. Diet and exercise—there's the answer. Make the muscles of the body work. Give up your favorite fats and starches. You know the system just as well as I do—and it is up to you to put it into practice. (Copyright, 1927, by Vogue.)

HOW TO KEEP WELL

By DR. W. A. EVANS

TEN COMMANDMENTS FOR HEALTH'S SAKE.

THE following are the commandments for which the Athens and the Olympic Games, health department is responsible:

1. Eat wisely; much milk, green stuffs, fruit and whole grain bread; little meat and sugar; avoid alcohol and stimulants.
2. Exercise freely; stand and sit erect.
3. Use your lungs; breathe fresh air; day and night; stay in the sunlight a part of every fair day.
4. Be clean; wash your hands before you eat; bathe often; clean your teeth morning and night.
5. Feel well; don't get overtired; rest is your best friend; a 30-minute nap in midday is not laziness, but good sense.

6. Be regular; don't break your appointments with yourself for meals, sleep and bowel movements.

7. Keep your balance; hurry and worry serve no man; play a little every day.

8. Keep safe; fight shy of the careless sneezer, the splitter, the common drinking cup, and wear black or navy blue the year around.

9. Don't be too smart; when you are sick, go to bed and call a doctor; few who do this promptly die of pneumonia and flu.

10. Be thrifty; invest in an examination by a doctor and dentist on your birthday every year. It will pay dividends.

JUST FOLKS

By EDGAR A. GUEST

THE LECTURE BUREAU ROUTE-MAKER.

A route-maker did the "talent" on earth

Received the sad news with a chuckle of mirth.

"We know not," they said, "where his soul may have flown.

But we hope it has gone by a route of his own.

If it's upward he's bound may he travel by freight;

May he sit in a station with six hours to wait;

May he ride on a train with no diner attached.

And get to the gates and find all of them latched.

"May he ride till he's weary and then ride some more.

Till he's faint and disheartened, discouraged and sore;

May all his connections have long hours between;

May he never get into a hotel that's clean;

May his baggage grow heavy, his train jump the track;

May he get to a place, with no chance to get back;

May he sit in a station from midnight till three.

Where there's nothing but posters on travel to see.

"And then when at last he arrives at the gate,

May St. Peter inform him, 'in here you're not date!'

It's only the 'talent' who come here to 'rest'.

We don't want a route-maker here with the blest!

Move on with your baggage! Continue to ride!

Pack up your instructions, and pick up your guide!

And route yourself now for a soon or two.

Catch the first local south and collect what is due."

(Copyright, 1927, Edgar A. Guest.)

Moses set the example of having ten commandments. The various laws of Moses have been the bond which has held the Jewish people for several thousand years. With few exceptions, they have had greater vitality, individually and collectively, than the peoples among whom they have lived. That they had this superior vitality is due, in great if not in greatest part, to the fact that they had the Mosaic law and that they have usually obeyed it.

Among the Mosaic laws were many that had to do with group action. There were laws of group sanitation and group hygiene. There were many others that related to individual hygiene and sanitation. Never in human history has there been so much so-called sumptuary law as is found in the books of Moses. There are people who talk about so-called sumptuary laws with derision, as though they were newly discovered.

Moses did not discover so-called sumptuary legislation, but he developed the theme and used it extensively.

When, however, Moses came to select ten themes for his commandments he left aside all sanitation and hygiene except mental hygiene, and to that he devoted the last of the commandments.

The Mosaic commandments were largely negative in character. "Thou shalt not" being the form used.

Dr. Bagby, of Georgia, uses the positive form, more popular last now with pedagogues and psychologists—"Thou shalt" being his technique.

Dad Has an Idea

The slipper with the unusual tie effect is most striking. It is of kid trimmed with lizard. In fact, it seems as though all the new shoes are either made entirely of reptile skin or at least trimmed with it. Polly wonders if she has given enough attention to the subject.

Dad, meantime, has wandered on, his mind on the problem of what to buy Mitzi or what to do with her to cure this Mid-Victorian decline she seems to be indulging in. It is only as he stands in front of this window that the shade of a glimmer of an idea comes to him.

come has shown a fair gain on the whole but expansion has been small in comparison with that of many other industries. In 1926 the first important step of the company in expanding outside its original field was taken when the Railway Steel Spring Co. was acquired. It is believed that the acquisition of this latter organization will tend to stabilize earnings.

In 1916 dividends on the common stock were paid in only 2¼ years. The year 1926, however, witnessed the of a 5 per cent rate which was in effect in 1919, the new rate continuing until the second quarter, the company paid 1½ per cent and followed this closely until 1923 when it paid no par stock in exchange for one share of $100 par stock. The new shares were issued in 1923, which has since been increased to $8.

Little Broom Scores in Opener

Workman's Claim of Foul Disallowed by Judges.

Titina Cops Fourth by Margin of 6 Lengths. Shup Second.

WAR MAN, not a son of Man o' War, but showing some of the staying qualities of a famous sire, circled the Bowie track yesterday afternoon ahead of a field of five to win the Midway claiming handicap, the day's feature, a race of a mile and 70 yards.

The 7-year-old gelding, by For Fair-Planette, crossed the finish line a length ahead of Golden Billows, popular veteran, which had been installed the favorite by the 10,000 fans present. Kandut, from the H. Q. Bedwell stable, was third, more than two lengths behind the betting choice.

Those familiar with War Man's early speed were not surprised when the W. C. Towner gelding bounded out in the start, but he was unable to maintain his lead. There was mild surprise when War Man held his advantage at the far turn. Golden Billows was racing evenly a length behind with Ledger and Kandut close.

As the group swung into the stretch, Jockey J. Petreca, who had the mount on Golden Billows, made his bid. Golden Billows answered by moving ahead of the gelding a furlong from the finish, but could not maintain the pace. Jockey Bourassa, on War Man, took nothing for granted, however, and was driving his mount at the finish.

The race was run in 1 minute 50.2-5 seconds, which is considered good time with the track slow.

Ten 2-year-old maidens paraded to the post in the opener and Jockeys "Benny" Workman and J. C. Mergler celebrated their return to racing, the former after an injury and the latter after a three-day suspension for rough riding, claiming in a stretch duel in which the Washington rider was at a disadvantage. Mergler won the race with William Garth's colt, Little Broom, a head from Fire Fairy, Workman's mount.

Fire Fairy broke on top, closely followed by Little Broom. As they straightened out in the stretch, Little Broom gradually moved aside of the leader. Both boys went to the whip and a keen struggle was anticipated. However, Little Broom, who struck averted toward the rail, knocking Fire Fairy off her stride. When Workman and his mount were again organized they made a brilliant effort.

Workman carried a complaint to the judges following the race, but his claim of a foul was disallowed.

Probably the worst group yet to face Starter James Milton tried conclusions in the 11th race, a 1-16 mile route. Favorite players were rewarded when Gayly, eased along for more than half the distance, finished with a rush to beat out Kelth, the longest shot in the race. Sam Smith, prominent in the early running with Corrie and Kelth, managed to annex third honors.

Myra M. F. J. Kearns' filly proved her superiority at the distance and weights, over five other players in the third race. She fairly jumped in front at the rise of the barrier, opened a wide gap and was never threatened. Jockey D. Dubala had only to guide the filly. At one stage it appeared that Harvey Steadman might menace the leader. He made a bid entering the stretch but almost immediately dropped back to beat out Bruns for the place. B. Parie little Titina, led all the way to win the fourth race. Jockey Second race in close attendance of the premeaker and continued with good energy when placed to punishment, but was inclined to swerve toward inside during stretch run and had Fire Fairy in close quarters. She was up in last few strides. Fire Fairy broke fast and showed good speed, saved ground, but Workman was unable to do her justice, the last few furlongs, claim of foul was made which was not allowed. Anna Minor, away forwardly, saved ground all the way and finished resiliently.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Gayly, $4.20, $2.10, $2.70; Kelth, $2.50, $1.50; Sam Smith, $2.10, $1.10; Gayly before being urged, responding readily when set down and coming to the outside of his opponent entering homestretch, moved into command and was drawing away the last sixteen. Kelth showed keen improvement, ran well with the pace from the start and held on with good energy for the final issue. Sam Smith raced Corrie into submission, but was unable to match strides with the first two.

GAYLY DEFEATING PACK IN SECOND EVENT.

THIRD RACE—Six and one-half furlongs. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 5:34. Off at 5:35. Winner, W. M. Galt, 11.3; second, 11.5; third, 11.7; fourth, 11.9. Time, 1:21.5.

Myra M. racing in her best form, sprinted into a good lead in the run down the backstretch, drew away when Harvey Steadman moved up with good courage rounding the far turn and held on in reserve. Harvey Steadman, in closest pursuit of the winner from the start, made his effort rounding the far turn, drew to the winner gradually, but weakened. Bruns, badly outrun in the early stages, finished going stoutly and the race should improve him.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Titina, $7.20, $4.50, $5.10; Shup, $10.10, $4.50; La Morie, $3.70. Titina, displaying keen speed in the going, went into the lead at once and, rated along until reaching the homestretch, drew the last furlong to win with much in reserve. Shup, a forward contender from the start, forced a good pace, but could not keep up when the real issue came. La Morie worked his way up on the outside and finished stoutly.

TITINA ROMPING TO EASY VICTORY IN FOURTH.

SIXTH RACE—One mile and seventy yards. Purse, $1,200. For 4-year-olds and upward; claiming. Start good. Won easily. Place driving. Went to post at 6:14. Off at 6:15. Winner, W. M. Galt, 11.3; second, 11.5; third, 11.7; fourth, 11.9. Time, 1:32.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—Lord Meise, $27.00, $13.50, $12.50; Jingle, $4.70, $2.70; Parmachenee Belle, $2.30.

Lord Meise outran his field to the first turn and was kept under slight restraint; saved ground the entire trip, without a bold challenge from Golden Billows at the furlong pole and began to draw away the last sixteen. Golden Billows was in close quarters going into the first turn, luckily secured clear passage on the inside of the leaders, moved to the winner with a rush and drew on even terms at the furlong pole, but weakened right at end. Kandut, improved his position steadily and finished with a belated rush. Just well placed in the early stages, he finished stoutly and the race should improve him. Repetitive trailing along in the early running; he finished stoutly the last quarter and the race should benefit him. Eddie Buck could never get to the leaders. Layer showed speed for seven furlongs, but quit badly for the final issue.

INTER-CLASS MEET FOR EASTERN Business Plays Saints Today; "Field Day" Tomorrow.

WHILE the high and prep school sports calendar for today is limited to the Eastern Interclass meet and the Business-Saints baseball game tomorrow will mark one of the busiest days for the local schoolboy athletes. Five baseball games are scheduled in addition to the Central-Eastern golf match and a number of unlisted practice golf and tennis matches.

Business High, which opens its season against St. John's today at 3:30 on diamond No. 4, of the Monument lot, follows with its second game tomorrow with the Catholic university freshmen at the Brooklyn stadium.

Gonzaga plays host to Leonardtown, Md., and St. Albans also entertains a visiting team, namely, McGuire's of Richmond. The fourth baseball game is furnished by Western and Episcopal High, which will be played on the latter's diamond, Alexandria, St. John's plays at Central in the fifth attraction of the day.

Central and Eastern are slated to play for the golf title, but the winner of this event may be challenged by the senior, as Business High plans to have a team sufficient interest can be aroused.

With approximately 50 boys already entered and the decision of Coach Rath to keep the entries open until the last minute promises that the interclass track meet at Eastern High stadium at 3 o'clock will be a big event.

Competition in both track and field events will be in four classes, the division being the unlimited class and the 115, 100 and 85 pound classes.

John Roper, who is receiving the entries, reports that the Eastern division is being shown in the unlimited class with 35 men entered, among whom are many prominent on the regular track team.

Those entered are Kohler, Talbert, Klappas, Chamberlin, Randall, Elberton, Anderson, Canera, Steinkueller, Kirby, Clow, May, Zambreny, Sadler, Hollis, Cosmano, McGlathery, Lawson, Entwistle, Patterson, Elinger, Brown, Elmer, Whitney, O'Brien, Shorp, Miles, Wade, Brashear, Langhney, Palmares, Quinn, Hoffman, Oehmann and Roper.

But a few men are entered in the other classes, but it is hoped many other boys will enter today. The Eastern division is being shown in the unlimited class with 35 men entered, among whom are many prominent on the regular track team.

Only two men, Council and Hart, are entered in the 85-pound division, while in the 115 and 100 pound divisions, Henry, Long, Sutton, Taylor, Rogers and Hill will compete.

The officials to handle the meet, as announced by Coach Rath several days ago, will

LIKENESS

All we can say today is that has been created a marvelous great and fundamental discovery past there has followed us far more than the creation of a new child is aware of the dramatic details of the telegraph, the telephone, and radio, and I hope the contributions of a scientific discovery is as important as valuable as these.

Education again emphasizes a new approach to important sciences, of which we have almost within the last two months seen a great example in the discovery of penicillin.

This is the result of deep planned and definitely directed scientific research, magnificently supported by the contributions of skilled scientists, loyally supported by a great corporation devoted to advancement of the art. The results of this type of invention never have been developed under conditions of isolated individual effort.

The world is under obligation to American Telephone & Telegraph for its vision in the establishment of a research department which supports tribute to all those who have so great a part in this development. Labor is the backbone of technological additions to the support of this great laboratory, which should be the center of so great a part in this development. These laboratories have prolonged list of additions to the music and the arts, and contribute other arts, but no one of them dramatic or more impressive than today.

"We always find in these occasions a stimulation to confidence in the future. If we can be assured a flow of new ideas, we shall be able to maintain thought, stimulate spirit, and use a thousand new opportunities for art and service, we will have plenty of vitality and vigor. We are most glad to welcome television as the best product of scientific discovery, and we are proud to have it placed the way over the telephone and the eye will ultimately follow. Washington and New York are today really working together in such other ways as well."

"I have known many of the scientists for many years, in many of the great laboratories, and I have seen the problems of television. We may be a little bit proud in the fact that its accomplishment is brought about by the efforts of the American nation is staged in our country."

BOERSIG COUNSEL PREPARING APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT

Lawyers, Still in Twenties, Fighting to Save Life of Doomed Slayer.

LACK OF TIME TO CALL
WITNESSES STRESSED

Wife Faces Problem of Providing for Self and Four Children.

Two solemn young lawyers, both still in their twenties, were getting ready yesterday for a desperate attempt to save the life of their client—a client old enough to be their father.

If the lawyers—Patrick Flynn and Lindsay Carne, of Alexandria—fail in that attempt, Louis Boersig, 44 years old, must go to the electric chair in Richmond, Va., on July 7.

If they succeed, those who followed Boersig's trial will believe that a legal miracle has been wrought.

Execution Postponed.

Boersig was found guilty and sentenced to death Wednesday afternoon, after a two-day trial in the ancient courthouse at Fairfax, Va. He was accused of killing the two small daughters of Mr. and Mrs. George Ridgeway in the Ridgeway home on Telegraph road, outside of Alexandria, the afternoon of March 4.

Attorney Flynn announced after the trial that he would not appeal to the Virginia Supreme Court of Appeals in Richmond, and, in order to give him time for the defense, Judge Howard Smith moved the date of Boersig's execution from May 7 to June 7.

Problem for Wife.

Flynn, who was graduated from the National Law school here two years ago, said yesterday that it would take him two or three days to prepare his appeal. Although the conviction of Boersig seemed inevitable, Flynn never gave up hope at the Fairfax trial that he might save him.

In his appeal, Flynn will stress the fact that he was not given time to call all the witnesses for the defense. Mrs. Louis Boersig, wife of the condemned man, was puzzling yesterday how she will be able to support herself and her four children if Boersig is taken from her. Though she admitted that he was brutal, even maniacal, when he was drunk, she insisted that he was the "best man in the world" when he was sober.

Man Must Appear In Threat to Wife

Mrs. Hattie L. Sewell, 181 Rhode Island avenue northwest, who says her husband, Samuel F. Sewell, 1720 Thirtieth street northwest, threatened to kill her with a pistol and by that act "christen that electric chair," secured a rule against him yesterday in equity court requiring him to appear April 22 to show cause why he should not be restrained from carrying out the alleged threat.

Mrs. Sewell, through attorneys Shefferman and Aronson sued for a limited divorce. She says that as a result of her husband's cruel treatment she has lost 40 pounds in weight and suffers from high blood pressure. The Sewells were married December 14, 1915.

Beauty Parlor Suit Demurrer Is Upheld

A demurrer to a $25,000 damage suit filed in circuit court by Elizabeth A. Reed, a minor, 1820 Citedale place northwest, against Helen G. Tyson, proprietress of a beauty parlor at 1304 F street northwest, for alleged personal injuries, was sustained yesterday by Chief Justice McCoy in circuit court.

The plaintiff charged that her hair and scalp had been burned on November 20, 1926, while her hair was attached to a permanent wave machine. Attorney James A. Davis, counsel for the defendant, based his demurrer principally on the contention that the plaintiff's declaration did not contain an allegation of negligence.

Rapp Temporarily Halts School Survey

Herbert Rapp, bureau of efficiency investigator, who has been directing the survey of District schools ordered by Congress, has given up the investigation temporarily on another assignment. It was learned yesterday at the Franklin school. He will return Monday to again assume active charge of the survey.

Ten agents of the bureau of efficiency have been delegated to the Franklin building to date, the majority of whom have confined themselves to clerical work on back census files, containing data indispensable to the survey. A substantial increase in the number assigned to the building is expected following the completion of Rapp's preliminary study of the several offices.

NEW ADVISORY COUNCIL MEMBERS ARE SWORN IN

Will Be Given Copies of Workmen's Compensation Bill for Study This Summer.

Immediately after taking voluntary oath of office yesterday the citizens' advisory council, to which four new members were elected last week, took steps to reconsider its endorsement of the Fitzgerald workmen's compensation bill. It was this endorsement that centered the fire of the trade bodies, unaffiliated with the Federation of Citizens Associations, on the council, and caused the election to turn on the question of reducing the number of Federal employees and increasing the number of business men in the council membership.

The oath was administered to the nine members by Daniel E. Gargies, secretary to the board of District commissioners, in the office of Commissioner Proctor L. Dougherty.

A meeting of the council was held in the board room of the District building. E. S. Hege was elected recorder, to succeed Harry N. Stull, who was not a candidate for reelection. The position of assistant recorder and treasurer was created and Kenneth P. Armstrong was elected to fill it.

Then Chairman James G. Yaden told the other members that he expected the Fitzgerald and Underhill bills, taking opposite views of workmen's compensation liability insurance, would be introduced again at the next Congress and that he would send copies to them for study, so that they could make up their minds which to endorse.

The first marriage took place on June 17, 1922. The decree in this case awards the first Mrs. Clark the custody of a minor child. The second marriage occurred at Rockville, Md., on January 2, 1926. Attorneys McNeil & Maher appeared for both wives. Clark did not appear to contest either case.

Public school teachers eligible for salary increases will meet at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning in the Thompson school to confer with Superintendent of Schools Frank W. Ballou and rating officials. Dr. Ballou will outline the procedure adopted by the school board at its Wednesday meeting and explain the nature of the examination to be held for promotion to B and D salary groups.

Candidates for promotion must file applications, supported by certified evidence, by April 29 with the board of examiners. On May 14 a one-hour written examination will be held, and June 15 the results of the quiz will be presented to the board of education. Promotions to the group B salary class will be made July 1, it was announced yesterday by school officials.

Prize Male Beauty Loses Two Wives

John W. Clark, alias Jean de Coursey, of Philadelphia, who won a male beauty contest in Washington some time ago, lost two wives yesterday by decree signed by Justice Stafford in equity court.

His first wife, Mrs. Leona P. Clark, was awarded an interlocutory decree for absolute divorce in which Miss Eugenia V. Hillard was named a codefendant. The second wife, Mrs. Eugenia Hillard Clark, was awarded an interlocutory decree annulling her marriage on the ground that Clark was already married.

The first marriage took place on June 17, 1922. The decree in this case awards the first Mrs. Clark the custody of a minor child. The second marriage occurred at Rockville, Md., on January 2, 1926. Attorneys McNeil & Maher appeared for both wives. Clark did not appear to contest either case.

Youth Arrested Here In Carolina Shooting

Although he does not know the name of the man he is accused of fatally shooting, Robert Pulwood, colored, 18 years old, of Mayville, S. C., is being held by local police for South Carolina authorities as a fugitive from justice. He was arrested by Detective Kelly, Waldron and Sweeney on a telegraphic request from South Carolina, stating that he was wanted for murder. The telegram failed to give the name of the victim, and the colored youth told police "all I know is his name was Buck."

Cadets to Receive Commissions Monday

Officers of the twenty-fourth regiment of high school cadets, divisions 10 to 13, will receive commissions in the corps at exercises beginning at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon in the Howard university stadium, according to an announcement made yesterday at the Franklin administration building.

Col. I. C. Jenks, chief of staff of the Third corps area, will present the certificates and address the cadet officers. In the reviewing party will be Dr. Mordecai W. Johnson, president, and Dr. Emmett J. Scott, secretary-treasurer of Howard university. In event of rain exercises will be held in the auditorium of Dunbar High school.

Two Divorce Suits Dismissed.

The bill for limited divorce filed by Mrs. Irene Gray against Joseph B. Gray was dismissed yesterday by Justice Bailey in equity court for want of prosecution. The bill for absolute divorce filed by Mrs. Velma G. Jabas against William G. Jabas was also dismissed for want of prosecution by Justice Bailey. The petition for maintenance filed by Mrs. Rose C. Reel against Frederick A. Reel was also dismissed for want of prosecution.

Dr. J. Ramsey Nevitt, coroner, certified death was due to heart disease. Policeman Tucker, of the Tenth precinct, who was passing in an automobile, took the stricken man to the hospital.

BREWER'S BRIBERY CASE WILL GO TO JURY TODAY

D. J. Shields Charged With Paying U. S. Employee for Data on Beverages.

The bribery case, in which Daniel J. Shields, millionaire brewer of Johnstown, Pa., is a defendant, will go to the jury today in criminal court No. 1 without the defendant himself having taken the stand.

This case involves, according to the indictment, the sum of $2,100 which Shields is alleged to have paid Miss Della M. Hays, wife of Mr. Della M. Evans, a stenographer in the prohibition enforcement unit for information and reports concerning brewery investigations, from April, 1925, to April, 1926. Mrs. Evans testified that she received altogether about $6,000 from Shields.

The principal witness for Shields was Samuel A. King, an attorney of Salt Lake City, Utah, brother of Senator William H. King of that State, who came to Washington in April, 1926, and secured from Mrs. Evans, the principal witness for the government, an affidavit in which she repudiated all of her testimony against Shields, which she gave in and out of court. Mr. King represented Shields in various matters and he appeared here after Mrs. Evans had sent an Easter postcard to Shields on which she begged forgiveness for having testified against him, according to Mrs. King's testimony.

The affidavit was admitted in evidence and was read to the jurors. In it Mrs. Evans complains of being trapped by a "Mr. Jones of New York" who paid her $500 for information concerning a Pennsylvania brewery. The $500 had hardly changed hands, the affidavit stated, when agents George Golding and John Cox appeared and arrested Mrs. Evans and the mysterious "Mr. Jones." The affidavit states that Mrs. Evans was intimidated into giving information against Shields and that she afterwards testified against him to avoid being prosecuted herself.

The affidavit and the testimony of Mr. King constituted the bulk of the evidence introduced on behalf of Shields.

Copies of examination announcements and blanks may be obtained from the commission at 1724 F street northwest.

Those for investigators below senior grade, for agents of all grades and for warehouse watchmen, will require assemblage of competitors in examination rooms for written mental tests, these being given in approximately 600 cities. The others do not include written mental tests.

All will include ratings on training and experience, searching oral tests and rigid character investigations being made by the commission with assistance of other government agencies. In order to give oral tests it will be necessary for the commission to send investigators to interview applicants in every part of the country.

Character investigations will be made with painstaking care and, because of the foregoing features, testing of applicants will be a more arduous task than ever undertaken by the commission. Those already in prohibition must compete with others taking the tests.

Bacon, president of the secondary school principals, also will attend.

Another plea for delay in public hearing looking toward a new reduction in telephone rates was made yesterday by counsel for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co.

The public utilities commission had fixed today for resumption of the hearings started by the old commission, which were delayed five months on technical points raised by the company's lawyers. The company complained that its special counsel, George P. Hoover, would be engaged today, so April 18 was set. Now Mr. Hoover wants the hearing set over until late in May. The commission will meet tomorrow to pass on the request.

Intercompany 1-cent transfers were ordered by the commission at New York and New Jersey avenues northwest from the cars of the Capital Traction Co. to those of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and vice versa.

Lighting Suggestions Invited by Covell

Acting Engineer Commissioner W. E. R. Covell yesterday announced that within a week a new list of streets to be added to the better street lighting program will be presented to the commissioners. He invited citizens to send him names of streets where lighting needs to be improved.

He said that he was specially interested in business streets where high poles and stronger lamps may be installed profitably, residence streets where the poles removed from business streets can be placed and streets where electric lamps should be substituted for gas lamps.

Woman Accused Taxi Driver.

Vera Lee, colored, 144 Seaton street northwest, told police yesterday that she hired a taxi cab at Fifth street and Florida avenue northwest and was driven to Fifth and Oakdale place, where the driver snatched her pocketbook containing $5 and left her in the abandoned cab. She named the driver to police of the Eighth precinct, who are searching for him.

$90,000 in Black Estate.

H. Campbell Black, who died March 19, left an estate valued at $90,000. According to the petition for letters testamentary filed yesterday in probate court by his widow, Mrs. Bertha Black, the estate includes the home at 2516 Fourteenth street northwest. The widow is the sole beneficiary.

FINGERPRINTS MADE IN U. S. EXAMINATION FOR 2,500 DRY POSTS

Rigid Inquiry Into Past Life of Applicants Arranged by Commission.

NATION-WIDE CAMPAIGN
FOR RECRUITS BEGUN

Ratings Will Be Based Especially on Oral and Personal Tests.

Fingerprints will be made of all applicants who obtain eligible ratings in the United States civil service commission's country-wide campaign, opening yesterday, to recruit eligibles for 2,500 positions in the new bureau of prohibition, civil service.

Fingerprints will be used to check the accuracy of applicants' statements as to arrest, indictment or conviction of crime or delinquency. The commission feeling that any person worthy of appointment to the bureau will not object to searching investigation of his past life.

Positions to Be Competed For.

Open competition will be held for the following positions: One chief of field division, $6,000 a year; 5 prohibition zone supervisors, $5,200 a year; 24 prohibition administrators, $4,000 to $6,000; 24 deputy prohibition administrators (enforcement work), $3,300 to $5,200; 24 assistant prohibition administrators (permissive work), $3,300 to $5,200; 80 deputy prohibition administrators, $3,000 to $4,600; 2 field office inspectors, $3,800 to $3,900; 4 associate field office inspectors, $3,000 to $3,600; 18 senior prohibition investigators, $3,800; 109 prohibition investigators, $3,000; 53 junior prohibition investigators, $2,400 to $2,800; 228 prohibition agents, $2,400; 1,260 junior prohibition agents, $1,800; 102 warehouse watchmen, $1,140 to $1,800; 74 attorneys, $1,800 to $3,200. Examinations will be practical, each specially designed to test qualifications and fitness of applicants to perform the particular branch of the work for which they are held.

Written Mental Examinations.

Those for investigators below senior grade, for agents of all grades and for warehouse watchmen, will require assemblage of competitors in examination rooms for written mental tests, these being given in approximately 600 cities. The others do not include written mental tests.

All will include ratings on training and experience, searching oral tests and rigid character investigations being made by the commission with assistance of other government agencies. ## Barber Shop Chords Charm Police Heads

Police officials and detectives were entertained at an informal concert at police headquarters yesterday by Jesse Emrick, 24 years old, a barber, of Richmond, Va. While waiting the "black maria" to take him to the First precinct, Emrick produced a guitar and began to strum it.

As the mellow strains sounded through the corridors, an audience collected and included Maj. Edwin B. Hays, chief of police; Inspector Henry G. Pratt, detective chief; Lieut. Walter Emerson, night detective chief, and Detectives Edward Kelly, Curtis Trammel and Eugene Davis. Just as the patrol arrived the barber began to play "Farewell to Thee." He was brought back to this city from Stafford County, Va., by Davis and accused of "joyriding" in the automobile of Meredith Northern, 833 Decatur street northwest.

Promoter of Stocks Is Ordered Arrested

Justice Bailey in equity court yesterday ordered the arrest of Ellis G. Hightman, described as a wealthy stock promoter with offices at 1301 G street northwest, and in Baltimore, on a writ sued out by his wife, Mrs. Loretta Hightman, 2001 Sixteenth street northwest, through Attorney Edward Stafford. Bond for Hightman was fixed at $1,000.

Mrs. Hightman sued for an absolute divorce and alleged that her husband had threatened to leave the city if she sued. The parties were married February 15, 1911, and have one child. A married woman residing in New York is named as codefendant in the divorce bill.

Extradition Appeal Lost.

Mrs. Myra C. Hill lost her second fight yesterday in circuit court to prevent extradition to Boston, Mass., where she is wanted to answer charges of false pretenses in connection with a real estate deal. Justice Siddons dismissed her petition for a writ of habeas corpus and ordered her returned.

C. Larimore Keeley, counsel for Mrs. Hill, noted an appeal. Assistant District Attorney Neil Burkhardt appeared for the Boston authorities.

Fights Income Tax Demand.

David B. Lehman, tire dealer, 929 H street northwest, filed suit yesterday in equity court for an injunction against Clay Powell, deputy collector of internal revenue, to prevent the seizure of any of his property for alleged failure to pay an additional assessment of $65.17 on his income tax for 1925.

Through Attorney Fred P. Myer, the tire dealer says that Powell is proceeding against him contrary to law.
